CONGRESSMAN TILLMAN'S ANSWERS TO THE QUESTIONS

PROPOUNDED BY THE ALLIANCE.

He Is Against the Subtreasury Bill and Expresses His Opposition in the Simple Word "No."

WASHINGTON, August 11 .- [Special.]-Congressman George D. Tillman, of South Carolina, the brother of Farmer Ben, who is to be the next governor of the Palmetto State, has written an alliance letter which will create a sensation. He is brief and pointed, and in answer to the subtreasury firmly replies "No." The letter is written to an alliance committee of Barnwell, composed of Messrs. W. B. Rice, W. G. Simons and J. R. Smith. He says:

I have received your official letter, as the organ of the Barnwell County Farmers' Alliance, re-questing my views, as a candidate for congress in the second South Carolina district, on certain measures of proposed legislation indicated in five interrogatories. Understanding from your communication, transmitting the interrogatories, that you do not want a long letter, but only categorical replies, I shall be as brief as possible to define my position without equivocation, by merely quoting each interrogatory separately, and making an absolute answer thereto. Questions:

"Will you be uninfluenced by a party caucus or otherwise support the following propositions in the national congress? "First Interrogatory—The abolition of the national banks and the substitution of legal tender treasury notes in lieu of national bank notes issued in sufficient volume to do the business of the country on a cash basis."

"Second Interrogatory—A freer or unlimited coinage of silver."

Answer-Yes. "Third Interrogatory—That congress issue frac-tional paper currency in sufficient quantity to facilitate exchange through the mails."

Answer-Yes.

"Fourth Interrogatory—Do you approve and will you support the inancial system known as the 'subtreasury plan,' adopted by the National Alliance and Industrial Union, at St. Louis, on the 7th day of December, 1889."

"Fifth interrogatory-The enactment of such laws as will prohibit the ownership of lands by Answer-Yes. But this has already been done by an act of March 3, 1887.

Permit me to add that for thirty years I have had no industrial occupation but cotton planting, which ought to identify me zealously with the welfare of the cotton planters, who not only constitute the bulk of my constituents, but have re-peatedly honored me with high commissions, and that if re-elected to congress I shall continue in the future, as I have done in the past, to support whatever I believe to be best for the interests of my class and section. I, myself, am a member of the Farmers' Alliance and deeply sympathize with the purposes and efforts of the organization to relieve the widespread and long continued agricultural depression. But the south alone cannot correct the fiscal and financial abuses of the federal government, which is now and has been dominated by the eastern states ever since the war. The west must co-operate with the south before success can be achieved; and, in conclusion, let me take the liberty of advising the southern wing of the alliance to move a little more cautiously, till it shall have been demonstrated that the western wing is in earnest about taking the proposed new departure of abandoning sectionalism and uniting with the south for a redress of mutual grievances. Very respectfully

In speaking of his letter tonight, Colonel Tillman said: "My letter tells it all. No one who reads it can fail to understand my posi-

ABOUT THE FORCE BILL. There has been very little talk about the force bill today, but Hoar and his following are working quietly to crystalize sentiment among republican senators for it. Senator Hiscock, of New York, although he would force bill passing, said today that congress would be in session until the first of November. This is taken to mean that the force bill is to be passed, for if the republicans would assure the democrats that they would make no effort to pass the force bill, the democrats would consent to the passage of the tariff bill at once and adjourn. However, as the matter now stands, the democrats are prepared to

Elliott F. Shepard, of The New York Mail and Express, has taken a novel method of advertising himself and his paper. He did it by sending a bright mulatto negro here to Wash ington with letters, showing him to be a representative of The Mail and Express. The young negro immediately applied to the keeper of the house press gallery for admission, at the same time exhibiting his letters. As there is no rule excluding any authorized representative of a daily paper from the gallery, he was admitted. Immediately he sought out Major Stofer, of The Richmond Dispatch, to whom he had a letter of introduction from B. Shepard White, the Washington society swell, who is now pining in jail for forgery. Major Stofer had met White when he was masquerading as a white man and storming Washington society. White had presumed upon this mere introduction to write the letter, which Charles W. Anderson, the colored representative of The Mail same time exhibiting his letters. As there is derson, the colored representative of The Mail and Express, bore.

Major Stofer was not slow, however, in retiring and leaving the colored journalist, who seemed possessed of an unlimited supply of gall, to shuffle for himself. Mr. Lang, of The New York Press, however, took him in tow, but the other correspondents escaped from the gallery in time to avoid him.

There was considerable indignation among the correspondents that The Mail and Express should have forced upon them a negro as an associate. However, when it was learned later associate. However, when it was learned later that the negro was not to remain permanently, but had only come over for a day or two, and was to deliver a speech tonight to a negro meeting in favor of the force bill, the wrath of the correspondents cooled down.

Commodore Vanderbilt's "more kinds of a d—n fool" son-in-law probably sent the colored man over to gain notoriety and make the negroes his friends in his race for congress.

EDMUNDS'S GAG ORDER.

He Wants the Tariff Debate Limited-The Increase of Duty on Tin Plate. WASHINGTON, August 11.-The senate met at 10 a. m., but a call of the roll disclosed the fact that there were only twenty-seven senators present, sixteen less than a quorum. The sergeant-at-arms was directed to request the attendance of senators, and by 10:20, a quorum having been obtained, business was

The tariff bill was taken up, the pending question being on Mr. Plumb's amendment, offered on Saturday, to paragraph 134, page 27, to reduce the additional duty on iron or steel hoops, cut to lengths for baling purposes, from two-tenths to one-tenth cent per pound. The amendment was rejected—yeas, 18; nays, 25. Three republicans—Messrs. Ingalls, Paddock and Plumb—voted in the affirmative. Mr. McPherson moved to amond the graph by making the duty on iron or steel hoops fifty per cent ad valorem. THE TIN PLATE DUTY.

No interest was attached to the proceedings until paragraph 137 (tin plate) was reached. Then Mr. McPherson read from petitions and protests from the Canned Goods' Association in protests from the Canned Goods' Association in New Jersey against the proposed increase of duty on tinned plate.

Mr. Vest also read from protests and statements of manufacturers of tinware in St. Louis, and declared that all the other items in the bill were insignificant compared with the outrage proposed by that paragraph. It was a bold, naked attempt by Pittsburg manufacturers to create another monopoly, in their own interest, against the consumers of the United States. Their idea was to keep out tin plate and to force the people to use galvanized sheet iron plates made in Pittsburg. It was protection run mad. He moved to reduce the rate of 2-10 cents per pound to 1 cent, the present duty.

Dr. Dawes did not think that the existing Dr. Dawes did not think that the existing duty could be justified in any respect. Tin plate should be either on the free list, or such a duty should be imposed upon it as would induce its production in the United States. The present duty of 1 cent a pound was a tax upon the consumer, and went into the pocket of the foreign producer.

"I thought it went into the treasury," Mr. McPhargar promarked but Mr. Dawes took no of the foreign producer.

"I thought it went into the treasury," Mr. McPherson remarked, but Mr. Dawes took no notice of the interruption.

He repeated that tin plate should either be free or sufficiently high. A duty should be imposed upon it as would lead to its production in the United States. There was no middle ground. He was ready to try the experiment of a higher tariff.

Mr. Plumb said that a few days ago the senator from Massachusetts voted with him to reduce the duty on iron ore; that the next day the senator had got a thorough basting from a New York paper (The Tribune) for joining the free-traders, and since then he had been trying to get himself back into line.

Mr. Dawes replied to the insinuation, and said that the position which he had occupied in the senate and in the house for many years.

Mr. Wilson, of Maryland, opposed the increase of duty on tin plate, and said that it had never before been proposed in this or any other country to impose a virtually prohibitive duty on any article of commerce toward which the entire body of the people bore such a relation as that sustained by the American people toward tin plate.

Mr. Morgan argued against the proposed in-lation as that sustained by the American peo-ple toward tin plate.

Mr. Morgan argued against the proposed in-crease of duty on tin plate, and said that that was the first instance in which congress had deliberately set to work to plant the seeds of an industry that did not exist and to fertilize them with money taxed out of the people at large, and that not for the benefit, in any sense, of the people, but for the benefit of those cor-porations and capitalists that would have the power to use the tax thus levied and all its in-cidentals to build themselves up to greater wealth.

wealth. . EDMUNDS TRYING TO LIMIT DEBATE

Mr. Morgan had not concluded his speech when he yielded the floor, at 6 o'clock, and immediately thereupon Mr. Edmunds asked leave to offer an order to be printed and to go over. The order was read. It is to the effect that during the consideration of the tariff bill, no senator shall speak more than once and not longer than five minutes on or in respect of any one item, or any one amendment, without leave of the senate. Such leave is to be granted or denied without debate, and without any other motion or proceeding except such as relates to procuring a quorum, until the bill shall have been gone through with to the point of its third reading, no general motion in relation to it other than to take it is to be in order. All appeals are to be determined at once and

Mr. Cockrell inquired of Mr. Edmunds whether it was his intention to press that over tomorrow morning.

Mr. Edmunds said that he was not able to

Mr. Edmunds said that he was not able to answer the question. He thought it his duty, from what he had seen in the last few weeks, to press it for consideration at the earliest suitable opportunity. He could not say whether he would do so tomorrow.

Mr. Morgan complained that he had been taken advantage of by Mr. Edmunds in offering the order, as he (Mr. Morgan) had only yielded the floor for a motion to adjourn.

Mr. Edmunds said that he would withdraw

Mr. Edmunds said that he would withdraw the order now and present it again tomorrow. He hoped that would satisfy the senator from Alabama. He thereupon withdrew it. THE INDIAN APPROPRIATION.

A conference was ordered on the Indian appropriation bill, and Messrs. Dawes, Plumb and Call were appointed conferees on the part of the senate. Mr. Allison, from the committee on appropriations, reported with amendments the house bill for an additional clerical force in the pension office, made necessary by the dependent pension bill, and gave notice that he would, some time tomorrow, ask the senate

Mr. Cannon, however, yielded to Mr. Rogers on the representation of the latter gentleman that he did not desire to waste time, but to correct errors which appeared in the journal.

Mr. Rogers then stated that the journal incorrectly reported the point of the order raised by him Saturday, when Mr. Engles of Tannes. by him Saturday when Mr. Enloe, of Tennes-see, was claiming the floor on a question of personal privilege.

After a little sparring between the speaker and Mr. Rogers, the previous question was

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL RUNNING ITS CARS.

GUARDED BY PINKERTON MEN.

New Men Rapidly Taking the Place of the Strikers-The State of Affairs All Along the Line.

NEW YORK, August 11.-Whatever way one night look at the situation all through the night and early this morning, it looked as though the strike on the New York Central road was slowly but surely petering out. Nevertheless, both parties to the blockade of the passenger and freight traffic were, so far as words went, at all events, as stubborn as ever All through the night the Grand Central depot presented a scene of unusual quiet and gloom, but as the hours passed away and day-light began to appear, the scene gradually changed. It became hurry and scurry everywhere. There was some apprehension, apparently, as to how the day's work would be begun, and the third day of the great strike

The Buffalo express, or newspaper train, noved out exactly on time at 4:55 a. m., and before 7 o'clock two trains had been sent out over the Harlem division. Having been successful so far the management set about making its plans for the day, and soon after the announcement was made that all trains would be run today with the exception of Croton locals, both north and south bound. It was thought advisable to abandon these trains altogether, but at the same time to meet the emergency the management arranged so that all trains, except express trains, should stop all trains, except express trains, should stop at all way stations, so that the local traveling public might be put to as little inconvenience as possible.

This order applies to all stations north of Spuyten Duyvil. The police arrangements remain about the same as yesterday, with the exception that the men were told to be ever watchful today and not leave their posts for even an instant. Precisely at 6 o'clock this morning, Third Vice President Webb entered the sanctum allotted to him in the depot, and a reporter immediately stepped for ward and said;

"It is reported, Mr. Webb, that the firemen of the road have joined the strikers?"

"That statement is untrue. The firemen, have not struck, and all trains so far are running all right and every one of them left here

THE SIGNAL TOWERS ALL MANNED. "What about the signal towers?" "They are also fully manned, and the men changed their shifts this morning, as though no strike had ever occurred." "The fact is, my young friend," continued

Mr. Webb, warming up and smiling, "every-thing is beautiful all along the road.". The third vice president kept on while read-the third vice president kept on while reading letters and telegrams as he spoke. "By the way," as though a new idea had struck Mr. Webb, he said:

"I-should have said all along the road, except at Syracuse. At that point, the road is not getting sufficient protection. I have telegraphed to Governor Hill, asking him to send out plenty of militis in order to resteat the graphed to Governor Hill, asking him to send out plenty of militia in order to protect the employes of our road."

"What, it anything, has been done in the direction of moving freight, which has already suffered much delay." was asked.

"We have already made arrangements for moving freight this morning, and relays of men are already at work at Sixty-sixth street, Thirtieth street and St. John's park. It is our intention to set about moving freight at these points at 8 o'clock this morning, and I am proud to say that we have an ample supply of policemen to save us from any trouble."

NOTHING FROM MR. DEFEW.

NOTHING FROM MR. DEPEW.

"Have you any objection, Mr. Webb, to say whether or not you have heard from Mr. Depew in relation to the strike?"

"I have not heard from Mr. Depew yet, and indeed, I do not expect to hear from Mr. Depew today. You see, we have coped with the strike so far ourselves, and I think that the worst of it is over, so that you can readily see that there is no likelihood that Mr. Depew will be called upon to interfere. So far, as I said, all is well."

THE FIRST FREIGHT TRAIN. The first train of freight forwarded from this city over the New York Central road since the trouble on that line occurred, moved out of the yard at Sixty-fifth street at 9:15 o'clock this morning. The work of making up a train had been going on for an hour and a quarter previously and the train was made up of forty-four cars under direction of Yardmaster Mitchell. cars under direction of Yardmaster Mitchell. All freight shipped was of a perishable nature, and neither preliminary work nor actual forwarding was marked with any excitement or difficulty. The train is bound for Albany. John O'Brien was engineer and Fred Smith fireman. The engine is No. 146. The departure of the train was watched by about one hundred men who stood in adjacent vacant lots. Two hundred policemen were on hand under command of Inspector Steeds, who was prepared to meet any trouble that might arise, but there was practically nothing for them to do.

THE GOVERNOR'S ANSWER.

THE GOVERNOR'S ANSWER. In reply to a dispatch sent by Vice President Webb to Governor Hill today asking that state troops be sent to Syracuse, he this afternoon received the following reply from Colonel Judson, military secretary to the gov-

Your dispatch to Governor Hill is at hand. He directs me to say that he has sent General Farns-Your dispatch to Governor Hill is at hand. He directs me to say that he has sent General Farnsworth to investigate the situation and report on it. It is desirable that official and authentic information should be obtained before overt action is taken. You may rest assurred that the state authorities will act promptly and vigorously in protecting property and preventing violence. The functions of military forces should not, however, be misunderstood. It is not their business to operate a railroad nor to interfere on Behalf of either party in a labor controversy, but only when invoked to aid the local civil authorities in suppressing violence and protecting property. They are not expected to do mere police duty, nor to discharge those functions which more properly belong to a sheriff's posse comitatus. The powers of the civil authorities should be fully applied before recourse should be had to military forces. The governor desires that you keep him fully advised as to any future occurrences.

ALL QUIET AT SYRACUSE. SYRACUSE, N. Y., August 11.—All is quiet in Syracuse. The railroad trouble is being confined to the yards at East Syracuse, which seems to be the present key to 'the situation. The Central authorities today began running all passenger trains over the West Shore, switching at Kirkville on the east and at Oswego Junction on the west, bringing the trains back on to the Central here. The Central's tracks through Syracuse today are practically a bandoned. Pinkerton men are active as deputy sheriffs, and the Twenty-sixth separate company of Elmira, and Twenty-nint and Thirtieth separate companies of Oswego are at an armory in this city awaiting orders. The Fifth battery moved out at 3 o'clock this morning, but was credered back. Where daylight broke at East Syracuse, all was quiet, even the customary tooting of locomotive whistles being missed. After breakfast the strikers, to the number of 500, repaired to the yards. They had been on watch all night, but had nothing to do. confined to the yards at East Syracuse, which

THE KNIGHTS SANGUINE.

Leader James Bourke was on hand, and counseled his followers to avoid violence. He counseled his followers to avoid violence. He said they were going to win, and were more determined than ever. All the forencon the main tracks of the Central were cleared. The strikers said they would let the mail go through, providing there were no passenger coaches attached. The news that there were Pinkerton men and militia at Syracuse, did not seem to disconcert the strikers. The statement that the engineers went out last night is denied. The Forty-fifth separate company returned to Syracuse last night. The report of the strikes on the West Shore and on the Delaware and Lackawanna roads to Binghamton is untrue. These roads are running as usual.

THE SITUATION AT BUFFALO. BUFFALO, N. Y., August 11.—The situation on the Central road here is unchanged. The strikers are few in number and keeping very quiet. Trains from the east are coming in several hours late. The Chicago limited, scheduled to reach Exchange street depot at 8:35 o'clock last night, got here about 5 o'clock this morning, and at 10:30 o'clock was still standing in the depot. If the train gets out of Buffalo sixteen hours hours behind time it will be doing as well as the passengers can expect RECRUITING IN CHICAGO. CHICAGO, August 11.—Representatives of the New York Central Railroad Company are n this city hiring men to take the places of the striking switchmen and brakemen. A gang of fifty recruits was forwarded to Buffalo Saturday night, and another lot was sent this morning. They are promised $70 per month for switchmen and $65 for brakemen, an advance of $15 and $10 respectively over the wages ruling for those classes of men on that road. The Pinkerton agency has also received an order for a large number of men to act as guards at various points along the line of the roads.

THE KNIGHTS MUST FIGHT THEIR BATTLE. Grand Master Sweeny, of the Switchman's Brotherhood, says he will not call out the smitchmen on the Michigan Central and Lake Shore roads to assist the strikers on the New York Central. He says it is purely a Knights of Labor strike, and that they will have to fight it out as best they may. The same feel-ing seems to prevail among the brakemen.

THE BROTHERHOODS WILL NOT JOIN IN. CHICAGO, August 11 .- An evening paper A man, high in the councils of one of the great

A man, high in the councils of one of the great organizations of railroad employes, gave to a reporter today some information of great import to those who are awaiting the result of the strike on the New York Central. He said:

"I have received dispatches this morning, which convince me that the back of the New York Central strike is broken. Men will have to go back to work at the company's terms within a very short time. The Brother-hood of Locomotive Engineers and Brother-hood of Locomotive Firemen, Brother-hood of Trainmen, and Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association have been appealed to and have each refused to give any assistance whatever to the Knights of Labor. This means that the Lake Shore, and Michigan Central cannot, by any possibility, be tied up, and that brother-hood men stand ready to handle New York Central cars. To make the situation clear it will be necessary to go into some explanation. When the Knights of Labor first organized, a foothold was gained in New York State, especially on the lines of the New York Central. Railroad men all over the country, it is true, following the example of the New York Central men, became knights under the impression that the great amalgamation of laboring men would aid them as switchmen, firemen and engineers. The experience of a few costly and unsuccessful strikes taught them their mistake, however, and the consequence was a general withdrawal of railroad men from the Knights of Labor. On the New York Central alone did the Knights of Labor to the row of the order interfered to prevent further demoralization of assembly railroad men. The result was a fight between the Knights of Labor men their organization. But the general ruther demoralization of assembly railroad men. The result was a fight between the Knights of Labor men that day to his. Everytime the brotherhood men have done something to prevent its success. Much the same has been the course of the brotherhood. Onsequently, when the executive officers were requested Saturday to give assistance to the knight

LEAVING ON SCHEDULED TIME. Officials of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company announce that there is now no interruption to passenger traffic on the lines of the New York Central, all through passenger trains being run on reg-ular scheduled time. At 4 o'clock p. m. today, a special fast freight train, composed of two cars left Hudson street depot with a squad of police on the en street depot with a squad of police on the engine. Train No. 21, known as the fast mail, which left the Grand Central depot, at 2:25 o'clook this morning, was the first train to get to Buffalo over the New York Central track. This train reached DeWitt, where the trouble occurred yesterday at 5 o'clock p.m. and found the yards, where it was impossible to get a train through yesterday, entirely in the nands of the railroad company. The switches were all manned, and everything was in thorough running order. This was the was in thorough running order. This was the first train to raise the blockade. On today's schedule, at the Grand Central depot, there were 138 Central railroad trains, of these 120 left the depot almost on schedule time.

The Fleet Fire a Salute-The Long Proce sion—A State Banquet at Which There Was No Speech-Making.

Boston, August 11.—Grand Army week opened here with bustle and excitement. Fortunately the weather is cool, light overcoats being in demand this morning. Visitors have been coming to the city for several days in crowds, and today they swarmed in, and the streets have been filled with marching bodies of men in process of distribution to their

The revenue cutter Gallatin, with Governor Brackett, Colonel Beard and Mr. and Mrs. McKee on board, was escorted to her anchorage. Mayor Hardland and other members of the city government also went down the harbor in the J. SALUTING THE PRESIDENT. President Harrison landed at about 5:40 o'clock p. m., amid the thunder of cannon at Row's wharf and was escorted to the Hotel Vendome by the first battalion of cavalry, the route being through Broad, State, Washington School, Trement, Boylston and Dartmouth Sidewalks and windows along the line of march, which was nearly two miles in extent, were packed with enthusiastic multitudes, who greeted the president with hand-clapping and cheers. The president rode with Governor Brackett in a carriage drawn by four dark bays. He carried his hat in his hand and bowed right and left at the greetings of the throngs. Be-hind rode Secretaries Rusk and Noble, and in the third carriage were Private Secretary Halford and members of the governor's staff. A STATE DINNER.

The company sat down shortly before 7 o'clock, and it was past 8 o'clock when Governor Brackett broke the almost painful stillness that had prevailed throughout the entire feast, by the broke the almost painful stillness that had prevailed throughout the entire feast, by the announcement that carriages were in waiting. LIGHTNING'S WORK. One Man Killed-The Miraculous Escape of Others.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., August 11.-[Special.]-At Dresden, near Palmersville, twelve miles distant, Saturday afternoon about 6 o'cleck, Erastus Webb, a prominent farmer, and eight neighbors were killing sheep under a large tree, when a thunder storm arose. During the storm, lightning struck the tree.

Webb was killed almost instantly. George McWhirter was struck, and lost his mind. A negro's clothes were burned off his body, but he was not fatally hurt. Sim Eanes's hat was burned off his head, but he was not otherwise ouched. The escape of the others is regarded Collision on the Louisville and Nashville.

A Calhoun Fire.

Calhoun, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—Mr.

L. L. Reeve lost his six-room residence here, tonight about 8 o'clock, by fire. It caught in the kitchen, it is supposed, from the cook stove. Most of the furniture was saved. The loss is about two thousand dollars, with $600 insurance on the house, but nothing on the furniture,

THE GUESTS WERE SAVED

But the Building Was Burned to the Ground.

GREENESBORO, N. C., August 11 .- [Special.] At 5:30 o'clock this morning the Hotel Fountain, in Winston, was discovered to be on fire. The fire originated in the kitchen, and is supposed to have been caused by a servant start-ing a fire with kerosene oil.

The hotel was crowded with guests. In a few minutes the flames were spreading in all directions over the house. Clerk Rowland Harrison, though almost suffecated by the smoke, made his way to the different rooms and awakened the guests. They all made their escape.

A large crowd was soon on the spot, and most of the furniture was saved. The fire companies soon had four streams of water playing on the burning building and held the fire so that it did not spread to any of the ad-joining houses. The extent of the loss has not been learned, but it is said to be covered by insurance. The Fountain was the largest

MACON'S CANDIDATE

FOR THE OFFICES OF THE STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Fall Meeting of the Society Will Be Held at LaGrange—The Programme of the Two Days' Session.

MACON, Ga., August 11.-[Special.]-In the morning at 7 o'clock, Secretary R. A. Nisbet and Assistant Secretary R. W. Jemison, and others will leave for LaGrange via Atlanta to attend the fall meeting of the convention of the Georgia State Agricultural Society, which will be in session Wednesday and Thursday of Quite a number of the members of the society from southwest and middle Georgia passed through Macon tonight en route to La-Grange. The indications are that the conven-tion will be one of the largest attended in many years. The election dent and secretary will lend additional interest and make a little excitement.

For the presidency, to succeed Colonel W. J. Northen, whose term expires in February next, and who will not be a candidate for re-election, the names of Hon. Thomas Hardeman and Captain R E. Park, of Bibb, are mentioned. It is not known whether Colonel Hardeman will be a candidate. If he is Captain Park will not oppose him. Secretary R. A. Nisbet having resigned there are several candidates for this office. The most prominently mentioned person is the present very efficient and faithful assistant secretary, R. W. Jemison, of Macon. Other candidates are R. B. Hall, L. B. From the Effects of an Attack by a Mad Dog-Their Sufferings-A Whole Community Attacked.

CARROLLTON, Ga., August 11 .- [Special.]-The Carroll County Times has received information of a wholesale biting of a made dog over near Tyre, this county. A Mr. Castly was awakened Friday night by a dis turbance among his chickens, and went out to see the cause. Just after he passed out the door of his house a large yellow dog pounced upon him, threw him on ground and bit him terribly. Castly's wife, hearing the fuss, ran out and the dog let go her husband and flew at Mrs. Castly. The dog caught her hand and actually clinched his huge teeth through it, and held her that way until a neighbor man came from his home three hundred yards away, and dispatched the dog with a knife. After killing the dog his mouth was prized open and the lady's hand freed from the vice-like grip.

Both Mr. Castly and wife are in a precarious condition, and, it is thought, will die. The dog was very large, and was affected with rabies. He bit hogs, dogs, cows, horses, by the wholesale in this community, and great fears are felt that other dogs may have been bitten, and may spread the deadly poison.

LIGHTNING'S TERRIBLE WORK.

One Person Killed and Ten Wounded at Old Marion Church.

Macon, Ga., August 11.— [Special.]—Today Captain W. A. Davis received an order from Twiggs county for a coffin, and thereby hangs a tale of death and ruin.

Yesterday about 12 o'clock, while 500 negroes were assembled at Old Marion Church in Twiggs county, twenty-one miles from Macon, a dark cloud gathered over the church, and a flood of rain co to fall. Suddenly there came a vivid flash accompanied by a sharp and terriffic peal of thunder. The lightning struck a tree thirty yards from the church, under which thirteen negroes had collected for shelter. The bolt split the tree and the entire "unlucky thirteen" were hurled senseless to the ground.

One was killed and ten severely wounded One of the injured, it is thought, will surely die. A mule that was near by was also badly hurt. Several in the church were severely shocked by the lightning.

Luke Glover was the name of the negro who was killed. The injured are: J. Graggs, Luther Carswell, Seab Robin, Paul Hart, Ben Bonds, Rob Burnett, Sam Sams, Gabe Corne lius, William Wilson and Bob Hart.

HUNTER STILL A CANDIDATE.

The Eighteenth Senatorial District May

Furnish a Contest.

ARGUSTA, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—
Edward Hunter, of Jefferson, was in Augusta today. Though defeated by the alliance in Jefferson county for the senatorial nomination Jefferson county for the senatorial nomination by that county, he may yet be nominated by the convention of the eighteenth senatorial district, which meets in Louisville Wednesday. Under the rotation system Jefferson county is entitled to the senator. Richmond seems disposed to take a hand in his selection, however; not to rob Jefferson of the senator, but only to help Jefferson make a wise selection. Mr. Hunter was rejected because he would not swallow the subtreasury bill, and Mr. George Warren, the alliance candidate, was chosen. Richmond likes Hunter for the enemies he has made, and it is said tonight that Hunter has made, and it is said tonight that Hunter will receive the six votes of this county in the convention. Jefferson's four and Glascock's two will make a deadlock, and it is believed that Hunter will, after awhile, gain a vote from Glascock and secure the nomination.

Glascock's delegation was instructed to vote for Jefferson's choice when Hunter was the only candidate in the field and before the county instructed for Warren. The Glascock delegates are said to be personally friendly to Hunter, and it is believed under the nature of Miller, of Bibb superior court, is holding a tion of them to assist in Hunter's nomination.

The city was full of alliancemen, and the candidates had ample chance to put in some good work. At 1 o'clock a large crowd gathered at the courthouse to listen to speeches from Colonel Colley and Judge Lawson. Mr. Olive was invited to address the crowd, but declined to do so. Much enthusiasm was manifested by both sides, and it is very difficult to state which had a majority in the meeting, Colley or Lawson.

Revival at Villa Rica.

VILLA RICA, August 11.—[Special.]—Rev. S. R. Belk has just closed one of the greatest revivals ever known in these parts. He had no ministerial aid, but did all the preaching himself, with such zeal and power that the whole country for miles around was greatly stirred up, and the membership of the church more than doubled.

At the close of the meeting the church decided that their house of worship was not large enough, and they are to meet on the 12th instant to discuss the propriety of building a larger house. Those who were converted and joined at this meeting were not small children, but grown people, both old and young. Great good is being done on the Villa Rica work. A Failure in Savannal

THE ANTIS RUN THINGS.

THE CHARLESTONIANS DO NOT

And Elect Anti-Delegates—A Lively Time at the Convention and Indications of a Contest

CHARLESTON, S. C., August 11 .-- [Special.] The democratic county convention met today at noon, the twenty Tillmanites from the sixth and seventh wards answering to their names

The first thing was a contest from the Till-manites of the eighth ward, claiming that the ballots would show that they were elected. This was referred to a committee on creden-tials, on which were four Tillmanites. They spent an hour hearing testimony, re-counted the ballots and tallied the poll lists, and then the committee reported unanimously in favor of the regular ticket, even the Tillmanite signing the report.

This, however, was not their game. When the convention had started to elect delegates to the state convention, a Tillmanite delegate from the sixth ward, named J. Elimor Martin, got up to make a speech, stating that he was just as good a democrat as Joe Barn-well, and wanted to present a protest against the whole convention. The chair decided that this couldn't well be entertained at this time, as the protestors had already recognized the legality of the convention by participating in its deliberations; but he intimated that the paper, which was very long, might be read at a subsequent stage in the proceedings.

This made the Tillmanites mad, and they efused to answer to roll call when the balloting for delegates was proceeding.

Here occurred a break. Barnwell, Buist,

Bryan and other democrats argued and pleaded with the Tillmanites for harmony but they were deaf to all appeals. Then the conven-tion decided to hear their protest read. The protest is a long document evidently instigated by Murphy and Reeves, the two leaders of the malcontents. It claims that the primary elections were fraudulent, charges the entire democratic executive committee with fraud and declares that the convention is an illegal

There was a disposition on the part of some of the unterrified democracy in the hall to chuck the soreheads out of the window at times, but the convention on the whole lis-tened very calmly to the charges of fraud which were urged against the democratic party. One delegate in the heat of debate anne that any man who said there was any fraud in the fourth ward was a blank liar; and once when a rather rash Tillmanite attempted to smooth down a rough statement that he had made in reference to Mr. Barnwell, explaining that he didn't mean to impute a falsehood to Mr. Barnwell, the latter replied with a decidedly meaning look, "Well, I don't think that you do." Then there was peace, and the balloting proceeded. The Tillman delegates refused to

TROUBLE AT TY TY.

A Fight Which Made Things Decidedly Lively for a Few Hours.

Tv Tv, Ga., August 11 .- [Special.]-There was blood on the moon in Ty Ty, on Saturday, and for a time there was every indication of pitched battle between two factions.

It came about this way: W. B. Parks and J. N. Green fell out over a settlement between them. The discussion grew hotter and hotter until Parks, to emphasize his views, reached oack and got a double-barreled gun from behind his counter. Green was too quick for him, however, and as soon as he saw what the motion meant, Green grappled with Parks and wrenched the barrels from the gun. When Town Marshal Roberts and W. R. Johnson, a clerk in Parks's store, undertook to part them, Green struck at Johnson and Johnson hit Green over the head and arm with a plow name, wounding him badly.

This put a quietus upon affairs for the time, and the marshal's rule was supreme. Later in the day, however, Green and his brother armed themselves with pistols and walked the streets searching for Johnson and Parks. At one time it seemed as if there would be a genand Johnson kept out of the way till the two Greens left for home late in the evening. All parties were arrested and are held under bond

THERE MAY BE FURTHER TROUBLE. There is much bad blood up. Both sides are good grit, and each is ready for any attack from the opposite party or their friends.

See Albany Grow.

ALBANY, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—Albany continues growing rapidly. New buildings are being erected in every portion of the city. Lands are increasing in value. An acre, which was bought three years ago for $300, has just been sold for $1,700. This land lies beyond the city limits.

A cotton factory, with a capital of $200,000, is contemplated here, to be built by a stock company. A steam laundry is to be removed from Massachusetts to this place.

equipped and most systematically conducted factory in the state. He has an experienced superintendent from New Jersey, who has been in the business for years, and is thoroughly posted in all of the details of the business. The principal vegetable canned is tomatoes, which are supplied from his hundred-acre tomato farm, which is superintended by E. B. Warman, a man who is we'l posted in regard to the cultivation of tomatoes. Other factories in this section are having trouble in getting fruits and vegetables to can, but the liberal prices paid at this factory and the large growing interest of its proprietor gives him an advantage over the others.

Captain Hartwell employs about seventy-five hands, all of whom make good wages, and spend their money at home. He only employs skilled labor, and the fruit and vegetables that are canned here are of the best quality and carefully selected. The Constitution reporter was shown specimens of peaches, apples, corn and tematoes that have just been put up, and they were very fine, retaining the flavor of the ripe fruit. Captain Hartwell informed us yesterday that his capacity had been greatly increased over last year, but even now orders were rushing in so fast that he was afraid that he would not be able to supply the demand on him, but that he would work to his fullest capacity. It is a genuine treat to walk through the factory and watch the system with which every detail of the business is carried out.

A Chatham Artillery Vetera

SAVANNAH, Ga., August 11.-[Special.]-Mr. SAVANNAH, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—Mr. Martin Tufts died this morning at his residence, 150 Taylor street, aged sixty-seven years. Mr. Tufts was a native of Savannah, and had a large circle of friends here and through the state. He was unmarried. During the war he served with the Chatham Artillery. He was the oldest member of that company, and his funeral will take place from the armory tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

AUGUSTA, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—Mrs. Lizzie Harrison, a poor widow, who lives on the corner of Mills and Market streets, and on the corner of Mills and Market streets, and supports herself by sewing, reported at police headquarters today the absence from home of her young daughter, Alice, fourteen years old, since Wednesday morning last. A policeman saw the girl-hoard the train for Savannah yesterday, and this, coupled with the fact that she has been seen by others in company with a notorious woman of had character, seems to continue the distressed medical to a believe to the second.

WHERE IS QUARLES?

THE YOUNG MAN WHO HAD A DIFFI-CULTY WITH MR. JOHN RYAN

Fails to Appear Before the Recorder-Mr. Steve Ryan Supports Charges Against the Station House Keeper.

John Quarles, the young dry goods clerk who drew a pistol on Mr. John Ryan a few days ago, has disappeared.

He was under a $200 bond to appear before the recorder on a city case last Saturday, but since about 9 o'clock on the morning of that day has not been seen in Atlanta. Mr. Steve Ryan, as well as his bondsman, is

Mr. Steve kyan, as well as his bondsman, is very anxious to know where Quarles is.

Mr. Ryan has sworn out a warrant charging Quarles with assault to murder, and intends to prosecute him to the extent of the law.

He stated further that immediately after

Quarles was arrested last Friday, he went before Justice Owens and swore out a warrant charging him with assault with intent to This warrant, it appeared from the evidence of other witnesses, Chief Connolly and Station House Keeper Joyner, had never been presented at the station house. It was kept in he pocket of the bailiff of Justice court until yesterday, when Chief Connolly sent for it to use before the commissioners. This negligence of the justice court bailiff lost Station House Keeper Foute thirty days'

Mr. Ryan has been seen by many of Quarles's friends and urged not to prosecute him, but to their appeals he has turned a deaf ear, and if Quarles can be found he will have to answer for his hasty temper on a very serious charge.

Last night before the commissioners Mr. Ryan stated the facts of the difficulty between Quarles and Mr. John Ryan substantially as they have already been printed in these

Mr. Tom Corrigan was employed by Mr. Quarles to represent him. Several hours after Quarles was locked up Mr. Corrigan went to ths station house to secure his release. When Quarles was locked up Station House Keeper Joyner was on duty. He entered a city case on the docket, and when Station House Keeper Foute relieved him he explained that it was probable that a warrant would be sworn out for Quarles on a state charge.

When Mr. Corrigan applied to Dr. Foute for Quarles's release no warrant had been received by him, nor any official notice given him that one had been taken out.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon, a half day after Quarles was arrested and locked up, Mr. Corrigan returned to the station house again, and no warrant having at that time arrived, Station House Keeper Foute released Quarles on a $200 bond, that figure being the limit. Before this was done, Mr. Corrigan stated that considerable influence had been brought to bear upon Mr. Ryan during the day, and it was more than likely that no warrant would be taken out. Nothing more was heard of the case or the warrant until yesterday. Saturday, when the case was called before the recorder, Mr. Charles Eckford, Quarles's bondsman, stated in court that to his knowledge Quarles was in the city about 9 o'clock, as he had been seen on Whitehall street at that hour. The case went over, but since then nothing has been heard of Quarles. His effects are still at his boarding house, and his friends say he is still in or near Atlanta, and that he will eventually give himself up, if Mr. Ryan persists in his prosecution. The police commissioners thought Station House Keeper Foute was to blame for allowing Quarles to give bond without first taking measures to ascertain whether or not a warrant had been issued. Dr. Foute says he followed the general custom regarding such cases, that after waiting a reasonable time he allowed the prisoner to give bond and be released.

Dr. Foute has been connected with the police department thirteen years, and his sus-pension last night is the first that he has ever had, never even having a charge preferred against him.

He takes his suspension very much to heart on this account, being convinced that his error was only such as is liable to happen

POLICE COMMISSION.

Business Transacted by the Board Last Night. The regular monthly meeting of the board of police commissioners was held last night. Besides the regular routine business, several other matters came up for attention.

A new team of horses will be purchased for the patrol wagon, which was completed recently. Chairman English has already selected the horses, a fine pair costing $275, and the board authorized him to make the purchase.

They will appear on the streets with the handsome new pratrol wagon in a few days. Patrolman Wooten was tried for conduct unbecoming an officer, but got off with a repremand. Patclman J. J. HOW TO PIN A PAPER.

An Interesting and Instructive Bit The following, from the pen of Hon. Carlton Hillyer, auditor of the Georgia railroad, will be of intest to many people:

be of intest to many people:

How to pin papers together in such a manner that any person handling them may escape injury from the pin.

Remember the golden rule: "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you."

The point of the pin should be covered. The best place for the pin is the upper left hand corner of the papers. The pin should point downwards to the left of the perpendicular at an angle of about forty-five degrees.

Take care that the point of the pin does not come out either on the under side of the papers, or on the upper side. The point of the pin should always be between the papers.

Making a bold use of language, we might say: Put the pin in the northwest corner, pointing to the southwest with its point covered.

S. Hook to be rated.

The state of Georgia is allowed fourteen scholarships at the Peabody institute at Nashville, and there are at present five vacancies. For the next few weeks Commissioner Hook will be busy reading and rating the papers that are coming in with every mail. Many appeals are being made for an extension of time for the examination, many of the applicants having been prevented from standing it on the day fixed.

In all cases where legal excuses are made a new trial is allowed the applicants, the time being extended until next Friday.

How they are graded.

The method of grading the applicants is to rate all the examination papers sent in and give the scholarships to the five who receive the highest grades in the rating.

Only about a half dozen of the papers have been received at Commissioner Hook's office yet.
The rating will be finished by September 1st, and the fortunate applicants will be announced.

The scholarships are valued at $200 per year, and are good for two years. A RUNAWAY COUPLE.

FIFTY MOUNTED MEN.

A DEER TEAM WILL BE IN THE

The Final Reports to the Festival Committee Show a Great Panorams-Making the Final Arrangements.

The final reports of the festival show a parade about two miles long, with the floats and carriages. The first division will be made of the carriages, and after that will come the floats.

Yesterday, about noon, Mr. W. S. Humphries, representing the fifty city salesmen of the Atlanta wholesale houses, came to apply for a place in the procession for fifty mounted men. The city wholesale men meet at 6:30 o'clock tonight at Oglesby & Meador's to organize, and will be in the procession handsomely mounted.

The character of the procession, as revealed by the sealed reports brought in to the committee, is astonishing. It was not thought that a display so handsome could be gotten up in so short a time. There is work of a character that would do credit to a regularly established pageant for which there had been ample time

Its New Features.

Mr. A. L. Atwater, the enterprising carriage manufacturer, came to THE CONSTITUTION office yesterday to give notice of a display that will be one of the most attractive in the procession. He enters a light phaeton drawn by his famous deer team, composed of two large bucks, with antlers branching nearly two feet above their heads. The ribbons will be held over this team by a beautiful young

Mr. Hampton who will have 2,000 fowls in the procession offers a prize of $10 plus the market price for the finest coop of chickens, not less than forty in the coop.

The descriptions of the floats are reported to the committee under a pledge that they will not be published before the morning of the 14th, and for this reason the committee cannot mention a great many displays as handsome as anything that has yet been noticed in print. One of the gentlemen who brought in a notice yesterday morning has eight floats elegantly gotten up, which will require 250 feet of space, or about one block of the street. Others will have displays of a character so unique and attrative that the bare mention of them would be sufficient to draw a crowd. But as was said above, the committee is under a pledge not to publish them before the 14th, and they cannot be mentioned.

Reconnoitering the Ground. Chief Marshal John A. Miller, with his division commanders and aides, were out yesterday morning looking over the route and se lected the streets adjoining Peachtree on which the respective divisions will rendezvous. They found the route a good one, and selected good places for the floats to form into divisions. met again at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at festival headquarters and began the difficult task of making up the pro-cession. This is a problem about as hard as a Chinese puzzle, but it is confidently believed that the six gentlemen who have it in charge will be equal to the emergency. In the arrangement of the divisions, due consideration will be given to the character of the floats, and an effort will be made to put each display where it will show to the best ad-

THE DAY AT THE PARK

IT PROMISES TO BE ONE FULL OF

Some of the Unique Features on the Programme—The Races—The Animals Will Be There.

The elephant show becomes more attractive every day. It will begin promptly at 10 o'clock, on the morning of the festival, with the bicycle races. A large number of entries have already been made, and, as a special inducement for a large turnout of wheelmen, no entrance fee will be charged persons on bicycles. The race for the $75 cup will be exciting, as some of the best wheelmen in the state have entered.

The Foot Races. One of the most unique and interesting features will be the foot races, for which there were seven or eight entries yesterday. The entries close today at 12 o'clock, and the number of contestants will be limited to twelve amateurs. The first race will be 200 yards for the state championship and gold badge. For this some of the best runners in the state are booked, and human endurance will be severely tested. Two hundred yards make a good long run, but those who have entered have endurance as well as speed.

The 100-yard dash for the state championship and badge will bring out a high rate of speed, and has enlisted some of the swiftest runners in the country.

The United States Fourth artillery band, one of the finest military bands in the country, has been specially engaged for the occasion, and the music alone will be well worth several times the admission fee.

The Zouave drill will be a feature especialy attractive. The Atlanta Zouaves, who will be the especial escort of the elephant in the parade, have agreed to give an exhibition drill at Piedmont park on the morning of the festival.

Two running races and a trotting race will be one of the finest features of the day. There is just enough racing to satisfy everybody, and not enough to weary anyone. There are four entries in each race, including some of the fastest running and trotting stock in the country. The elephant performance promises to be a delightful recreation to the children. They have, through THE CONSTITUTION, already come to know her ladyship Clio very well, and the behavior of their favorite on that occasion will not disappoint any of them, high as their expectations are. Pho tographs have been taken of Clio in several different attitudes, and her keeper says she will behave like a good elephant should.

The Camels and the Jaguar. Keeper Havens, of the Gress zoo, who has aken a lively interest in the elephant show from the first, proposes to receive Miss Clio becoming ceremony, and out the camels as a bring ception committee. These camels have been pronounced by experts the finest animals of their kind in America, and they will no doubt find the elephant a very congenial com-panion. They will be present at Piedmont park and assist in the elephant show. The South American jaguar, that beautiful animal which so much resembles the leopard, will also be taken out to the park in a cage specially built for him by the Atlanta Wire and Iron Works. Keeper Havens has made a special pet of the jaguar, and the great cat, weighing over four hundred pounds, leaps over a whip held waist high as lightly as a tabby would hop over a poker. During the performance at the park Keeper Havens will enter the jaguar's cage and make the animal perform his various feats.

The whole performance, in a word, will be little short of an inpromptu circus with many interesting additions which could not be had within a circus tent.

The mayor, General Chairman Fear, Colonel G. W. Adair, and Mr. Gress, who are the orators of the day, will visit the Piedmont park during the elephant show, escorting the twelve ladies who have been invited to take part in the ceremonies of the day.

WEST END PAVING

TO BE DISCUSSED IN A BIG MEETING

The Citizens of the Suburb Disturbed Over the Gordon Street Paving-What Has Been Done

The enterprising suburb of West End is be coming excited on the paving question.

For some time an effort has been made to have Gordon street, its most important thoroughfare, paved. There seems to have been, generally, a favorable sentiment to the suggestion, and everything moved smoothly until the council got ready to go ahead, when the question arose as to what the street should be paved with. Some want brick, and others do not, and some want anything that they can get, so that the street is paved.

The council was about to close a contract with the Venable Brothers to pave the street, and under the impression that it was about to be paved with belgian block several citizens signed a petition, requesting the council not to act, as they did not think belgian block suitable to a residence street. Others signed the petition requesting the council not to act because they are not in favor of having the street paved, and others petitioned the council to proceed at once with the work of paving, but expressed their dislike for belgian block.

It seems that the council had in view, in their contract with the Venable Brothers, the paving of the street, not with belgian block, but with smooth-cut, four-inch granite blocks, the space betwen which was to be filled with cement, so that the whole would present a smooth, unbroken surface, having the advantages of both asphalt and hard stone

The petition business unsettled the council. and in order that the question might be dis cussed at a meeting of those who are interested directly in the paving of the street, Mayor Nelms has called a meeting for tonight of those who signed the petition, which embraces every property owner on Gordon street between Caldwell's store and Peeples street.

Following is the notice. All persons signing a petition dated 5th of August. 1890, requesting the town council of West End not to sign any contracts to put down pavement on Gordon street this year, are requested to meet at the council chamber on next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, sharp, to discuss the whole matter of paving said street.

JOHN W. NELMS, Mayor.

The discussion has aroused the entire suburb and everybody is awaiting the action of the meeting tonight with unusual interest. Judge R. L. Rogers, who is said to repre sent one faction, presents the case this way:

WEST END TOWN, OR CITY WARD?
EDITOR CONSTITUTION: Will you allow a short space for consideration of matters interesting to citizens and property owners of West End? The matter is about streets, taxes, school and annexa-

STREETS.—Citizens along Gordon street have recently been very much agitated on account of the peculiar work being done there at the corner of Gordon and Ashby streets. Corners which were perhaps the finest in the town, have been sunk into the depths so as to make pools of water, or holes of mud. When remonstrance was made, the overseer and workmen said it was orders of the street committee and city engineer. Members of the street committee and city engineer. Members of the street committee say they didn't know the work was going on that way and in that place. Then where was the street committee, and what was it doing? The engineer? Well, if such tinkering as shows there is civil engineering, may the good Lord and the town council be blessed, but may they give it to us of the kind that may be uncivil. Nature gave us a beautiful spot for a corner lot, but civil engineering has marred it and left it in the mud.

We think the law has not been observed in the changing of that street. Freeholders have not been selected by the mayor and council, and by the owners, for considering the propriety of changing the street and assessing damages or benefits. See the charter for such provisions.

TANES.—We have had an increase of rate of taxation from thirty cents to fifty cents per hundred dollars during this year. Next we are noti-

Taxes.—We have had an increase of rate of taxation from thirty cents to fitty cents per hundred dollars during this year. Next we are notified to place curbing along the fronts of all lots. The cost of that is a tax upon the citizens. Then we are notified again that the street is to be paved with Stone Mountain granite.

The cost of that, as I have been told, is about $1.25 per square yard. Altogether, then, our taxes for one year must be five to eight per cent on value of property. Can we afford any such fancy rates? Then for whose benefit is that paving? We may suppose that the Granite Company is interested in its profits on rock, and the friends of the company are interested in the town? or in the the company are interested in the town? or in the the company are interested in the town? or in the com; any?

Another view: That street is not much used by citizens of the town of West End, but is the main road for country people and wagons going to Atlanta markets, and is the way of Atlanta people and vehicles going to the country on either business or pleasure, or to the cemetery in sorrowful procession. Then why should we have to bear the burden of paving their way? Why not let the county of Fulton and the city of Atlanta pay the expense of a paved way for their people?

SCHOOL.—Why may we not have a public school, under a good system of management, or else let it out to a good teacher who will take it and run it on its own merits and value for tuition? Why should our taxes go to its support, and then nay a on its own merits and value for tuition? Why should our taxes go to its support, and then pay a monthly tuition besides? In my opinion the plan is wrong, and I am anxious to see it changed and corrected.

Annexation.—Would we not have been in better condition if we had voted in favor of annexation? I will not undertake now, in this article, to make any elaborate discussion of that subject. A fair consideration of it will bring a fair answer, and I only now invite attention to it. At the proper time notice will be given of the intention to have a bill introduced in the next legislature for apnexation with Atlanta.

I only throw out these suggestions now that our citizens may think of them and discuss them fully. Shall it be West End town, or the seventh ward of Atlanta? Very respectfully yours.

"In the summer of 1864 I was sent to the Annapolis hospital, suffering with chronic diarrhea. While there, I became so reduced in strength that I could not speak and was compelled to write everything I wanted to say. I was then having some 25 or 30 stools per day. The doctors ordered a medicine that I was satisfied would be of no benefit to me. I did not take it, but persuaded my nurse to get me some of Dr. Ayer's Pilis. About two o'clock in the afternoon I took six of these pills, and by midnight began to feel better. In the morning noon I took six of these pais, and by much plight began to feel better. In the morning the dectors came again, and after deciding that my symptoms were more favorable, gave me a different medicine, which I did not use, but took four more of the pills instead. The Mississippi Problems.

The state constitutional convention which will meet at Jackson, Miss., today, will deal with problems of vital importance.

Among the delegates are many of the ablest men in the state, and the outcome of their deliberations is looked for with anxious interest by their constituents.

For some years the white people of Mississippi have recognized the evils of indiscriminate suffrage, and have felt that their supremacy could not be maintained without restricting the voting power of the ignorant black majority in some legitimate way, without conflicting with the constitution and laws of the United States.

The delegates feel that they have a difficult task before them in determining questions of right, power and expediency, and the adjustment of the demands of federal authority and peculiar social conditions.

Mississippi was reconstructed under acts of congress growing out of that provision of the federal constitution which guarantees every state in the union a republican form of government. The act readmitting the state in the union declared that it had adopted a constitution that was republican, that the legislature elected under it had ratified the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, and that the state was entitled to representation upon this condition, among others, that the constitution should never be so changed as to deprive any citizen or class of citizens of the right to vote who are entitled to vote under the provision of the state constitution which says that "no property or educational qualification shall ever be required for any person to become an elector."

It is plain enough that, whatever changes may be made, the government must remain republican in form, or the United States will interfere. A recognition of this important fact has caused Senator George to condemn the system of plural voting recommended by Judge Campbell. The senator's views were recently summarized in these columns, and the leading statesmen of the south fully agree with him that, if the fundamental conditions of the act of readmission are observed, nothing in the way of an educational or property qualification in the matter of suffrage can-be imposed. But it is contended by some that these conditions do violence to the federal constitution, and those who take this view may feel disposed to ignore them. There will be no hope from the supreme court, as that tribunal has held that the whole subject of reconstruction must be entirely disposed of by congress. Now, as congress is still controlled by the party that was in power when Mississippi was first bound by these obligations it is safe to say that their fulfillment to the very letter will be insisted upon. There is danger that congress will conclude that any plan of suffrage tending to disfranchise many colored voters is a discrimination on account of their race, and in that event there may be an attempt to again reconstruct the state. The situation is a perplexing one. The voters are estipresent time a majority of about seventy thousand, but in many counties the whites are in the majority. In the matter of illiterate voters The Memphis Commercial presents the following statistics from a Mississippi correspondent:

In 1870 the whole number of white voters was 76,909, of which 9,357 were illiterate, and the whole number of colored voters 88,850, of which 80,810 were illiterate, leaving of educated voters a white majority of 59,512. In 1880 the whole number of white voters was 108,254, of which 12,473 were illiterate, and the whole number of colored voters was 130,278, of which 99,068 were illiterate, thus showing a white majority of 64,571. So much of the facts would lead one to believe that the white majority of ed-ucated voters is on the increase, but that is by no means the case. When the large increase in the colored population is considered we find that the illiteracy of the colored voting population, which was 50 per cent in 1870, fell to 76 per cent in 1880, while the white illiteracy, which was 12.1, de-lined in the same period to 11.5 per centum.

On the ratio thus established the per centum for the year 1890 is estimated at 65 for the colored and 10 for the white, making a white majority of 40,451, and for the year 1900 at 56 for the colored and 9 for the white, with the greatly reduced white majority

The danger of allowing such a mass of dense ignorance to vote is simply incalculable.

The remedies proposed for this unhappy condition of affairs deserve serious consideration. Senator George recommends a change in the basis of representation from the whole number of inhabitants or qualified electors to that of counties or other subdivisions, and the proposition is made that the majority representation shall be given to the white counties, thus securing a legislature empowered to elect the governor and state officers. The suggestion is also made that the governor shall have power to appoint all state officers, and remove them at will. Of course, the objection to this plan is that it concentrates too much power in the legislature and respondent already quoted: The system of plural voting recommended by Judge Campbell looks to an enlargement, to a cer-tain extent, of the voting power of each individual tain extent, of the voting power of each individual otherwise having the right to vote, on the basis of his ownership of property in the county of his residence. It provides that the voter, otherwise qualified, who is the owner and in possession (or whose wife is), or who is tenant for years at will or at suffrance, is possessed of land in the country or town of the assessed value, over and above incumbrances, of $1,000, situated in the county in which he offers to vote and extended. which he offers to vote, and having in such land an estate of freehold, or for a term of at least twenty years, and having been so possessed by him, or his wife or his tenant, for at least one him, or his wife or his tenant, for at least one year preceding the election, unless the title shall have come to him or her by devise or descent within that time, shall be entitled to one additional ballot because of such land.

To makes provision for those who own no land by allowing an additional ballot to all who paid the sum of $10 and the sum of $10 and the sum of $10 and the sum of $10 and the sum of $10 and the sum of $10 and the sum of $10 and $10 a

He o uples with it a provision for the regulation of primary elections which any political party may desire to hold, and that, at such elections, no elector shall be entitled to more than one ballot, thereby expecting to secure equal voting strength to the white citizens in their democratic primaries.

Senator George is satisfied that Judge Campbell's scheme is unconstitutional, and the judge is confident that the remedy proposed by the senator will be promptly condemned by the federal government.

Major Barksdale and Judge Calhoon are not so bold in their suggestions. The former goes in for a poll-tax and two years' residence in the state and county, while the latter would fix the term of residence at twelve months, and adopt the Australian ballot law, and make felonies and petit larceny disqualifications.

The Vicksburg Commercial-Herald is for a long term of residence and a strict registration law.

Chancellor Cowan is in favor of allowing all female property owners to vote, and as nearly all of them are white, an increase of 40,000 white votes would be the result.

Several other schemes are before the public, but they may all be summarized as follows: 1. A change in the basis of representation of such character as to vest the governing power in the white counties simply or in the white counties and senatorial districts.

2. Plural voting on a basis to make plural voters of a sufficient number of whites to secure a safe white majority.

3. Examination, registration and certifica tion of fitness to vote by commission 4. Conferring suffrage upon females having certain property qualifications and upon male minors between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one years possessing certain property and educational qualifications. 5. A disqualification for crimes of a certain character. 6. A longer residence in the state and county. 7. An increased compulsory poll-tax prepaid or a compulsory poll-tax of the present amount and a voluntary one of a greater amount prepaid, the latter to carry with its payment the right to vote. 8. The Australian ballot system.

Our Memphis contemporary's correspondent, after surveying the field, gives it as his opinion that the convention will put the Australian ballot system in the constitution, and rely upon it as the best way of maintaining white supremacy in a legitimate manner,

From this summary of the important work to come before the convention it will be seen that the issues to be discussed and the methods to be adopted will require exceptional wisdom and statesmanship if trouble with the general government is to be avoided. The good people of Mississippi will have the sympathy of the friends of honest government everywhere in their peaceful struggle for the maintenance of civilization and social order.

Business Bars the Bayonet.

The solid business men of the north move slowly in political matters, but when they make a start it is useless to oppose them.

We have felt confident all along that the business interests of the country would unite in a protest against the force bill, and it seems that we were not mistaken. The petition circulated by The New York Star has received numerous signatures, and a similar petition drawn up by the well-known firm of Thurber, Whyland & Co., of New York, is receiving signatures from the wholesale grocers and business men of all parties in every city and town in the coun-

Undoubtedly, the opposition of the merchants and manufacturers to the federal election law will be little short of conclusive.

These men do not act on account of politics. They are talking business. They have notified the senate that harmony between the sections is absolutely essential, and that it would be criminal to disturb that harmony. They denounce the force bill as unnecessary and inexpedient, promis ing nothing but evil, and calculated to revive the race question, and interfere with the peaceful progress of the south. The petition proceeds to charge the advocates of the bill in congress with partisanship, and the measure is declared to be unworthy of the party once honored by Lincoln, and Grant, and Garfield.

In this sensible and practical country, or ganized business is too big a thing for the bayonet to tackle. Within the past three weeks this tremendous force has raised its voice and made itself heard. The republican partisans have taken the alarm, and the action of the senate in modifying some of the offensive features of the house bill shows that the rising tide of protests is having its

There is a growing opinion in the north that the bill threatens disastrous consequences to both sections. This sentiment finds expression in every petition. It led to the recent protest from the republicans of Alabama; it reduced the republican vote in Kentucky and caused the democrats to gain two or three counties. It is smashing the republican party all over the south, and has so demoralized the northwest that the indications point to a clean democratic sweep in that region.

It is a fortunate thing for the people at large that our material interests constitute in an emergency a mighty political force, superior in influence and power to partisan administration with an army of place hunters anxious to do its bidding. It is a blessed thing that the men who have most at stake are solidly united to maintain peace and fraternity, secure just laws and protect the integrity of the ballot box. Some day our republic, undermined by corruption, may totter and fall, but that day is still in the future. The time is not yet ripe for a successful crusade against the liberty of the citizens and the rights of the states. Peace will triumph over partisanry, and busines will bar the way of the bayonet.

They Will Not Murmur.

There is no more entertaining spectacle to be witnessed in this country-or in any other country, for that matter-than th occasional exhibitions of republican gall that are given in the northern organs. There is a modesty and unconsciousness about these exhibitions that invest them with a pecu-

One of the neatest we have yet seen is given on the little stage of The Boston Advertiser, under the mellow glow of incandescent lights. The editor appears in halftights, so to speak, and comes before the audience dragging a piece of southern information across the stage by the hair. The lights burn low, and the trombone player grows dismal in his interpretation of melody. It is thought that a tragedy is about to be enacted, but the lights are suddealy turned on, the editor smiles heartily and it is at once realized that a comedy is about to be enacted. And a comedy it is. The announcement is made that in the recent county election at Chattanooga, held under the Australian system, a republican majority of 1,000 was changed into a democratic majority of 500the negro vote being reduced 50 per cent. The editor then sheathes his broadsword pulls off his beetling eyebrows and his pirat ical-looking beard and remarks that, under all the circumstances, "the republicans of the north will doubtless be forced to accept the result of this election without murmuring."

Could anything be neater than that? Is it possible for unadulterated gall to take a more beautiful shape? The northern republicans will not murmur! Well, we should murmer not!

The Attractions at Chautauqua.

THE CONSTITUTION takes pleasure in calling the attention of the people of Atlanta and of Georgia to the programme of unusual attractions that will be presented at the Pledmont Chautauqua during the present

The central feature of interest during the week is, of course, the lecof Dr. Talmage, tomorrow Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Thousands of Atlanta people will doubtless go out to hear this most famous of the world's preachers and lecturers, and those who go will be amply repaid in the intellectual profit and enjoyment which they will derive from an hour spent with one who exercises as great an influence upon the thought and morals of the age as any living

Second only to this attraction are the lectures of Dr. Lysander Dickerman, upon the historic, social and architectural interests of ancient Egypt, which are of surpassing interest, as handled by one of the best thinkers and scholars of the age, amply illustrated by stereopticon views and explained by a master of description and research.

Mr. Leon H. Vincent, one of the most popular young lecturers of America, will present, every day during the present week, one of his notable lectures upon literature and art, each lecture being the result of most elaborate and scholarly thought and preparation.

The latter part of the week will be rendered brilliant by lectures from Walter B. Hill, of Macon, whose name is a standard in thoughtful and literary circles in Georgia, and by at least one lecture from the brilliant and accomplished Mrs. W. H. Felton, of Cartersville, than whom no woman is better known and admired in the state.

The Piedmont Chautauqua is an enterprise that should be particularly dear to the people of Atlanta, because it is the expression of the best thought and highest devotion of the beloved Grady, and it is worthy in itself, in its suggestions and opportunities of culture, of the hearty and unstinted patronage of the people who are honored by its proximity, and who will be profited by its continued and prosperous existence.

Poor Whites and Negroes.

We find the following remarks in the editorial columns of The Boston Advertiser: The popular cry has been, as borne to us in the north through the southern papers and by the speeches of Grady and other representative southerners, that the southern white people would not allow their interests to be controlled by a mob of unintelligent men. We have reason to believe that many have uttered this protest insincerely, for we have never heard any complaint against voting by the "poor white trash" of the south, al-though they are as illiterate and in some respects fully as miscrable a specimen of humanity as the African race anywhere exhibits in the south. If our southern statesmen are sincere in desiring that the intelligent shall rule, no discrimination will be made in the application of the Australian ballot system to persons of race, color or previous condition of servitude. Undoubtedly, very many colored men in the south care little about exercising the right of the ballot. It would be interestted on the part of the illiterate blacks and the lliterate whites to qualify themselves as voters. We believe that the colored men would show fully much ambition in this direction as the

We observe in the foregoing an example of the wonderful ignorance that seems to have taken possession of the northern mindwith respect to the elements that go to make up citizenship. Even so wise and impartial a man as Mr. Edward Atkinson, in the course of a casual discussion with THE CON-STITUTION, gave evidence of the fact that he shares with the editor of The Advertiser the mischievous ignorance which is willing to place an illiterate white man on the same mental plane with the illiterate negro. There is no comparison whatever between the two.

The editor of The Advertiser ought to remember the history of this republic. The men who fought to establish it, and who may be credited with founding it, had no great knowledge of books. Have there never been in New England any poor white men who lacked education, but who were yet patriotic citizens, understanding the principles of the institutions under which they lived, and ready to die by them? If not, then New England has been more unfortunate than the south, for there are in this see tion men who do not know a letter in a book. but who thoroughly understand and appreciate their responsibilities.

As Mr. Hayes said at Mohonk, there is an gnorance that strikes deeper than illiteracy. t is this ignorance that the south is afraid of. The white man who knows nothing of books, nevertheless has inherited an antitude for understanding and appreciating his duties as a citizen, his relations with his neighbors and the obligations he owes to the state. In these respects, the poorest, the humblest and the most ignorant white American has immensely the advantage of the most highly educated negro. It is perfectly natural that this should be so, and there is nothing in the fact to the discredit of the negro. This reminds us to say to our northern friends for the thousandth time that only time and experience can give to the negroes the elements and qualities necessary to a proper appreciation of the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. It has been so in the case of the whites, who had no freedom till they had fitted themselves for it, and no government of their own until they were able to establish and maintain it. This is the A B C of history.

In his new book, "Conversations in a Studio Mr. Story touches upon a question that has often suggested itself even to the woman. It is this: Why has it never occurred to any woman to test the legal binding force of the clause in the riage compact, "with all my worldly goods I thee endow." Now if that stands for anything at all, it stands for a clear quit-claim from the bridegroom to the bride-a deed given orally to be sure —but given unmistakably and definitely and in the presence of witnesses. And if the marriage contract is binding in one particular, it is binding in all. If it holds the man to any of the obligations it enumerates, it holds also to this. Why does not some one of that class of wives whose husband's niggardness or carelessness in supplying them with money make a test case by bring-ing suit against her husband for an unlawful use of the worldly goods which became hers in the

A Business Men's Protest.

From The New York Times.

A protest against the passage of the force bill has been started in the wholesale grocery trade of this city, and petitions to congress giving expression to it are to be circulated for signatures in that and other branches of business, not only here but in other parts of the country. Those who have started this protest and those who are expected to join in it are business men "of all shades of potitical belief," and their motives are entirely nonpartisan. The reasons given in the petition for opposing the force bill are that it is "unnecessary and inexpedient and calculated to create discon-tent between the people of the north and south, now peaceful and prospering;" that it will "fan into life the smoldering embers of the, race ques-tion, which time and education are gradually ex-tinguishing;" that it will set back the industrial alike the whites and the blacks, the south and the north," and that as a partisan measure it is in-consistent with the spirit of the great leaders of the past in the republican party and hostile to the general welfare of the people.

No doubt it may be truly said that business men protest against this bill through fear that if passed it will work an injury to trade, especially trade between the commercial cities of the north and outh. It might also be said that injury to trade is of small importance, compared to the protec-tion of the political rights of the people. In this there would be much force if the purpose and ef-fect of the proposed measure were really to secure and protect rights which are now violated. Back of the commercial motive of the petitioners, we must seek the grounds for that motive. The argument is not merely that trade would be injured and money lost, but that the injury would come from a disturbance of peaceful relations and the checking of material progress in the south, upon which the well-being of that section rests, and by which the well-being of the whole country is affected. Merely to check the material pros-perity and development of the south would in it-self be an outrage and a wrong, because it is upon those forces that that section must rely, not only for the welfare and happiness of all its people, but for working out the social and political problems with which it is perplexed. They are the springs of its progress, of improvement in the forces of education, and of the elevation and enlightenment of the sentiment of the people. In the language of the business men's petition, the southern people have "already cleared away most of the shadows which surrounded them, and which the sunlight of prosperity and intelligence with a little more time will entirely dispel."

But the interference of the federal government in the elections of the southern retains and the surrounded them. with which it is perplexed. They are the springs in the elections of the southern states would not simply work this vast material injury, which would involve losses to business men on account of the stifting of trade, but it would work political mischief. In fact, the political mischief would be the immediate cause of the material injury. By inflaming sectional feeling anew and inciting to inflaming sectional feeling anew and include one wife the expiring antipathy to the national government in the control of northern republicans, it would check the political progress of the south and turn back the tendency to-ward a changing of party lines. It would arouse race antipathies anew and make more difficult the solution of the problems which they beget. This rould be a ser ious wrong to the negr would be a serious wrong to the negroes and make the growth of the republican party among the whites impossible. The commercial objection to the policy of interference rests upon considera-tions that touch the vital interests of citizens of both races and of all classes.

This is understood in the south more fully than it seems to be understood in the north, for demoit seems to be understood in the north, for demo-crats and republicans, whites and blacks alike, in that section are protesting with the business men of the north against the passage of the force bill. They do not want it, because they realize the harm that it would do them, and they know that it would afford no real protection to their political rights. Its practical effect is so evident as to justify the belief that its real nurposes is not to secure soliti-Its practical effect is so evident as to justify the belief that its real purpose is not to secure political rights, but to rekindle sectional animosity and conflict in the hope of obtaining partisan advantage in the north. It is fear of losing republican representatives in the north rather than expectation of gaining them in the south that inspired this infamous partisan device. But if the real sentiment of the northern people can find expression through business men and those interested in the peace and prosperity of the whole country, the blinded politicians may learn that the advantage of which they dreamed annot be acquired by such a method. By adopting it they could win no new support, while they would repel much that they might otherwise have retained.

A COLUMN OF GOSSIP.

The democratic executive committee, of Douglass county, has called a mass meeting of the Douglass county democracy for the pur-pose of taking action concerning the senatorial race in the thirty-sixth district. The meeting will be held at Douglassville on Thursday next, and will doubtless prove one of the most interesting political gatherings of the

The situation in the thirty-sixth district is. in some respects peculiar, and it is especially so in Douglass county. No county or district contest in Georgia attracted as much attention as that between Hon. J. M. Terrell and Hon. A. J. Snelson. When Mr. Terrell was nominated at the Fairburn convention, some dis-satisfaction was expressed by Mr. Suelson's friends, and at a meeting held after the convention they decided to submit to the suballiances the question whether Mr. Snelson should run as an independent. Whether this has been done or not, it is impossible to say. Thursday's mass meeting in Douglass may throw some light upon that question.

But there are other matters to come that meeting. It will be remembered that the mass meeting which selected delegates to the senatorial convention instructed them to vote for Meriwether county's choice-the right of that county to name the senator being recognized under the rotation system. Meri-wether sent nine Terrell delegates and six Snelson delegates to the senatorial convention, but in the primaries Snelson had a small majority of the total vote. The majority of the Douglass delegation referring to their instructions, decided to vote for Snelson, but one of the delegation, Dr. Whitley, couldn't see it in that light and voted for Terrell. There will be an effort, it is said, to censure Dr. Whitley for that act, but the doctor is amply able to take care of himself, and will doubtless explain to the satisfaction of his constituents his reasons for voting as he did.

There is every prospect of that being a lively meeting.

If there has been any question about the position of the alliance toward the democratic party, the leading editorial of yesterday's issue of The Southern Alliance Farmer ought to settle it once and for all.

The official organ of the alliance speaks out in no uncertain terms against independent candidates. That The Farmer reflects the sentiment of the alliancemen in all parts of the state, nobody who witnessed the enthasiasm with which the plank of the platform referring to this particular matter was received by the delegates to the state convention can have any doubts. The members of the alliance spell Alliance with a big A and Democracy with a big D.

The Alliance Farmer in the editorial referred to says, in the course of a good demo-

The Alliance Farmer in the editorial referred to says, in the course of a good democratic talk:

On more than one instance alliancemen who have been defeated have refused positively to run as independent candidates, even at the earnest request of men who have heretofore been organized democrats, and who are not now members of the alliance, but in every instance these alliancemen have refused to run independently, and are solid for democratic unity and democratic success; in fact, the great brotherhood of Georgia is essentially democratic, and will most certainly repudate any man who enters the field as an independent candidate. The alliance has taken a hand in the politics of the country, not to disrupt, but to solidify the democratic party. Their mission is to make it worthy of the respect and confidence of the people, and no member of our order who proposes to bring shame upon the organization by trying to disrupt the white man's party of Georgia and of the south, will be countenanced in it. It is also the policy of the order to do all in its power to forward the interests of the requiar democratic nominees, and, like every good citizen, when we have made an effort to clect a man who is in sympathy with us and have failed, we stand by the nominee of the party and do all we can to make his candidacy and his work for the people a grand success.

The word independent, as applied to candidacy, means independent of the democratic party, Means to be dependent on the republican party, therefore, we fail to see the difference between a candidate who if wholly dependent upon the republican party, and one who comes out squarely and announces.

opinion, but the democratic party is the dominant party in this state, to be independent of it is to be dependent upon the opposing faction.

Pretty plain talk, that.

Among Atlanta's distinguished visitors yes-terday was Hon, Charles L. Bartlett, of Macon-Mr. Bartlett is at present the senator from the twenty-second district, and there are few men, twenty-second district, and there are few men, if any, in Georgia that have been more closely identified with the legislation of the state than he. He has represented Bibb in the lower b in the lower use several times and had no opposition for senate. He will certainly be in the next the senate. He will certainly be in the next house, for his people, it seems, have made up their minds to ask his services again. It is pretty well settled that he will be in the race for congress from the sixth district two years hence, and if he is, there are very flattering chances of his becoming the successor of Congressman Blount. This brilliant and well equipped young Georgian has a host of warm personal friends throughout the state who are watching his career with particular interest.

The congressional contests in the eighth and ninth districts are just now attracting more attention than probably any other contests not yet decided.

THE CONSTITUTION'S dispatches tell of the lively three-cornered fight in Morgan county in which Colonel Colley, Judge Lawson and Colonel Olive are engaged. The action of Morgan will doubtless have a very considerable effect on the result. The county has been conceded to Lawson until within the past few weeks, but the Colley pear. conceded to Lawson until within the past few weeks, but the Colley men now hope to carry it. Such a result would be generally considered a big victory for Colonel Colley. The vote now stands, Colley, 10; Lawson, 8; Olive, 8—with Morgan (2), Han-cock (4), and Oconee (2) yet to act. The probability of a deadlock in the eighth district convention causes talk of a dark horse. Congressman Carlton is believed to have an eye cast southward, but Dr. Carlton's opposition to the alliance will probably stand in his way. In case of a deadlock, lookout for Broughton, of Morgan. If District Attorney Darnell means what he says, he is a sure-enough candidate in On the 13th the democrats will meet at Gainesville, and will nominate Colonel Tom Winn. Shortly afterwards the republicans will decide what they will do. "Between Winn and Pickett," said Colonel

"Between Winn and Pickett," said Colonel Darnell, yesterday, "the issue will be who is entitled to alliance endorsement, and both will clamor for it. Between the republican candidate and the two democrats the only issue will be protection, which is my only platform in the campaign. No issue can be made of the force bill, because such a law doesn't apply with any bearing in the ninth. We have but a dozen or so negro votes up there, and I don't think any one will spring such an issue in the campaign as the force bill."

Speaking of his chances, Darnell says: "Pickett is going to get half the democratic vote in the ninth—at least half—as an independent, and there is going to be some great fun up there before it is all over. Paste that in your hat."

Judge A. M. Speer was in the city yesterday looking after the candidacy of Eugene Speer for the clerkship of the next house. Gene Speer is a candidate against Your Uncle Mark Hardin for that position, and, it is needless to add, has his hands full. One thing certain about this race, the house of representatives is sure to have an efficient clerk.

HOW THE BEAUTIFUL ALEXANDER

Drew the Attention of the Beauties of the Northern Lands.

A TALK WITH MRS. BAYLOR STEWART.

SAVANNAH, Ga., August 11 .- [Special.]-There is a great revival of interest in the scenery and people of the north lands. It has be-come fashionable for tourists to cruise the seas whose waters are lashed back from the north pole, and to penetrate into regions supposed to be inhospitably cold.

This revival, which first begun in England, and has but slowly extended to America, is the outgrowth of the last thirty years, coming after a craze of centuries, which located all that was worth hearing, as well as all that was worth seeing, in the south of Europe. Following the age of the crusades, when pilgrimages led to scenes made sacred in Scripture story, Italy became the great resort of travelers. That this should be so was not to be wondered at. The wonderfully soft blue sky, the picturesque mountains, the calm and placid lakes, the restful landscape upon which the eye dwelt with so much pleasure, were all enough to enthrall the fancy and please the desire for scenes which led away from the hard monotony of life. The historic associations of every civilized country with the great Roman empire, followed by the religious ties which bound the world to the Rome of the pontiffs, made it the ambition of every man who could to see Rome and drink in the inspiration of Italian

The darkness which enveloped other lands once famous but long forgotten-was dispelled by the light which broke out from struggling Greece. The stirring verses of Lord Byron touched a sympathetic chord in the hearts of English-speaking people, and much of the interest which had been centered in Rome turned to Athens. It became quite the thing to speak learnedly of the great Greek authors, and dreams were indulged in that the Greece of Homer and the other gentlemen with more un-pronounceable names was about to be restored. With the establishment of Greek independence under a king of alien blood, the ancient capital grew quite gay, and the plains and mountains rendered immortal by the great works of the masters, were crowded with tourist parties not only from England, but from France, Germany and Italy as well.

As Greece had broken the Italian spell, so she was finally forced to retire before the royal figure of Denmark. The gallant little kingdom, whose sons had overrun England and the isles of the sea, and whose sailors made a toy of the waves, had been left so far behind in the march of history, that she lingered in the rear of the procession with the timidity of weakness. King Christian was a poor man, whose wife was accustomed to superintend her own cooking, and whose large family of girls kept the royal nose to the grindstone.

The girls grew up beautiful, but poor, compelied to wait upon themselves, and if report be true, the younger sister wearing the last-year's dresses of the elder. These fair maidens, pure as the icicles which hung from the limbs of the fir tree, were destined to play an important part in the world's history.

The enthusiasm which greeted the lovely Alexandra—"the Viking's daughter"—when she set foot upon English soil to become the wife of the young prince of Wales, knows no parallel. Her beauty, her simplicity, the story of her humble life in Copenhagen, appealed to the masses, and in the cottage homes of England, as well as in the mansions of her nobility, e queenly young woman was close to every heart. The anxiety of ambitious families to trace out Danish descent was scarcely equalled by that which looked toward the Norman bastard who crushed the Saxons into submission. The prosecution of this genealogical search led the crest-hunters into every part of Denmark. Icebergs began to rival the mountains of Italy, and the northern skies had a lovelier tinge than the azure which overspread the field of Marathon. From Denmark to Norway, and finally across into the land of the reindeer, and coasting up uncomfortably close to the limit, became quite fashionable, and certainly more exhilerating than days spent in the enervating atmosphere of lands further south.

Our American travelers are to be found in every land known to the guide-book, Until a few years ago, the great ambition of American families was to visit "the old country," meaning the old family seat. It was quite an event for the old man, who had accumulated a competency, to return to the old home, where was buried the bones of his ancestors. Year by year the number of travelers for pleasure has increased, until now over 50,000 Americans are scattered over the face of Europe, most all of whom take in the northern countries, and are loud in their praises of the natural scenery and the quaint names of the people. Mrs. Baylor Stewart, of Atlanta, who spent last summer along the coast of Norway, talks most interestingly of what she has seen. In fact, while one listens to her charming descriptions, he is forced to the conclusion that the art of conversation is not forgotten. Speaking of her cruise on the Nordland, Mrs. Stewart

"This was the fifth day of our return trip. yet we felt no impatience at going over the me route. Many of the places we passed at night to see by daylight on our return. changing cyclorama was always beautiful. The succession of flords and island and mountains, the marvelous play of color in sky and sea, and on granite peaks and sheltered hamlets never tired the eye, but kept the mind always inter ested. The numerous stops of the mailboat varied the journey. We noted the ship load and unload. We saw casks of cod-liver oil and barrels of herring. Two hundred of the latter were taken on board at one point, and three hundred at another. Tons and tons of dried fish, herring and cod, stacked up like hay. Great round balls of reindeer horns, enclosed in fish netting; queer bundles and numerous nondescript boxes and bags, and wooden hat-boxes, and trunks adorned with primitive paintings. All these were hoisted on board by a machine of chains and pullers that made the most diabolical noise that ever mortal listened to-annoying enough in the day but a deadly torment by night. It is as if a thousand galley slaves, or prisoners taken by the old Vikings, were rattling their chains and groaning; and again, as if they were shaking the timbers of the ship in a mad war-dance! "We soon learned to ask the captain when the baby-waker would perform, and we would time our slumbers accordingly, frequently staying on deck until two at night, and sleeping late in the morning. This fiendish hoister sengers that came aboard at every station. One day we took on a beautiful young girl who spoke excellent English—it is amazing how these Norwegians speak English—and a happy bride and groom, The bride, blooming and pretty, crochetted industriously a most elaborate. rate pattern, while the groom sat by with adoration in his eyes. A pretty, flaxen-curled "little pigge" (little girl), with great blue eyes and rosy cheeks, and charming ways, carrying a doll and baby carriage, amused us at another

"The courier of the emperor of Germany, a fine-looking fellow, who told us that the em-peror's left arm was nearly as strong as his right, from constant practice, and that he swims well and fences finely—diverted us in our regret at losing our English passengers. They left us at one of the fiords for a week's fishing near the glaciers. One of the gentlemen was a professor of mathematics at Greenock, a son of Dean Blakesley. His wife was very intelligent and agreeable, reserved, like ner husband, at first, but on further acquaintance sociable, frank and talkative.

"One morning at one o'clock we saw a number of men and women sitting on the top of a high hill, in the open air, watching some acrobatic performances. That will give some idea of the mildness of the summer climate of the arctic circle, which continued to charm us by the invigorating quality of the air, and the ab-ence of any keen, raw feeling. "Another night at twelve, stopping at a port, the usual number of boats shot out from the shore and surrounded the steamer. These Norwegian boats, with keen keels and sharp high points, fore and aft, have always a pic-turesque interest, whether they be narrow and used only for passengers, or wide and deep and used for freight. One of the former, one night, was filled with five little girls-the oldest not over twelve, apparently-and a very small boy, They came alongside, received a girl from our steamer, and pushed off again, managing their cars with the skill and swiftness of men. When they saw us observing them, they smiled and bowed, and their happy laughter rang in the air.

"Altogether, we felt attached to the Nordland. She was a steady, easy-going vessel. We became entirely accustomed to Norwegian cuisine. We ate the brown bread heartily, varying it sometimes with the cheese which appears at breakfast and supper, but never at dinner. Corn beef, roast beef, mutton, reindeer meat, ham and an unbroken line of fish, of divers kinds, suffice for dinner. The boar's head, holding a lemon in its tenacious jawlike a turtle in never letting go until it thunders, perhaps—was the proud ornament of the center of the table when we came, and it held the fort when we left. His grinning presence grew a trifle boring, and might have fatigued our senses were we not in the Arctic regions. There were dainty desserts, jellies and blanc manges served with delicious cream, and icecream served on macaroon cakes, and "multibeer," like yellow dewberries swimming in whipped cream. This shows there is something in the arctic regions besides whales.

"That reminds me to say that that far-famed cetacean yielded us no sport at all. We saw no end of whaling vessels in harbor and going out to sea, and fishing in the offing, but we saw only one or two large fellows rolling over at a long distance, actually too indolent to spout. The whales I have seen off the banks of New Foundland behaved in a far-more showy manner. That is one point in favor of my experience on the Atlantic-otherwise I loathe it! The Pacific I hold in equal detestation. The Arctic! The Arctic for me! The German ocean I found, at the bottom, to be full of treachery, a "nasty" bit of water, as our English cousins say. The Baltic is somewhat of a vicious nature. But what shall I say of those wild sea animals-the Skager Ruck and Cattigat? Ye sea gods! Why curb ye not the the mad careering of these wild sea-horses, that plunge in untamed fury hitherward and thitherward? Shall I ever forget the day spent on the Cat's-throat-or the wild night on the Rock? Oh, torturing Rock! -when the good ship Christiana seemed on a regular bacchanalian orgy? She seemed so madly drunk. She was swaying and plunging, now toppling over on her prow, now rearing back astern, low-lying on the sea on her starboard; now she grated as if scraping against a rock. Then she plunged forward blindly, every timber groaning and creaking, turned a double somersault, picked herself up, bounded into the air, lit on her feet, the groans that rent the air—I forbear to tell the tale." P. J. MORAN.

WANT DIVORCES.

Husbands and Wives Wish to be Legally Separated.

Four divorce suits were filed in the clerk's ffice of the Fulton county superior court yesterday. Mrs. Sarah J. Jones asks for a divorce on the ground that her husband, Rufus F. Jones, after ten years of wedded life, during which he treated her in a most cruel manner, left her alone and unprotected. Mrs. Mabrie Lena Bellinger claims that her husband, James Polk Bellinger, married her in 1885. He treated her cruelly, she avers, and finally, in 1889, deserted her and left the state with a married woman, Mrs. Lillie Jackon, and that they are now in Colorado, living together as husband and wife.

Anthony T. Stewart wants to be divorced from his wife, Katie L. Stewart, to whom he was married in February, 1889. They lived was married in February, 1889. They lived together in this city and in Memphis, until their separation in May, 1890, during which time he ciaims she treated him with great cruelty, biting and scratching him at times. Finally, he alleges, she became associated with women who were not of good character.

Isaac N. Welsh sues his wife, May Welsh, for a divorce on the ground of desertion. They were married in May, 1885, and lived together until August, 1885, when she left him and ran off with a man to him unknown. He alleges that she has remained in same place unknown to him ever since, and on the ground of desertion he asks a legal separation.

FROM OUR NOTEBOOK.

Scott Thornton on the 14th.—Scott Thornton will play the "Fool's Revenge" at DeGive's on the 14th, supported by a select company. Atlanta's talented young actor will be greeted with a large and appreciative audience, and the performance will be well worth witnessing by even the most critical.

Dale-Nutall's Sentence.—Rev. W. R. Dale, alias J. O. H. Nutall, as the jury claimed, was given the full limit of the statute by Judge Maddox in Paulding superior court. He was sentenced to serve at hard labor in the penitentiary for the term of four years. The motion for a new trial will be argued in Rome, September 8th. Meanwhile the condemned man is at liberty under a $1,200 bond.

A Distinguished Visitor.—Hon. James Lampton, the brilliant and active young mayor of Cedartown, was in the city yesterday on his way to LaGrange, where he goes as a delegate to the state agricultural convention, which meets in that place today. On his return Mr. Lampton will spend a week or ten days in the city.

New Street Car Lines.—Yesterday was the day for filing petitions in the city clerk's office by the various street car companies for extensions and new routes. The Atlanta and Edgewood Street Railway Company flied three, the Atlanta Street Railway Company one, and the Atlanta and Mc-Pherson Street Railway Company one.

Pherson Street Railway Company one.

A Mother's Heroism—The Athens Banner gives this account of a thrilling incident at Tallulah, in which the heroism of an Atlanta mother figures: "Yesterday while a bright little four-year-old boy of Mrs. Bird, of Atlanta, who is stopping at the Grand View hotel, was playing around the feuntain in the front yard, the little fellow decided to take a bath, and so he dived head foremest into the basin. The mother saw the leap of her darling child, and frantically rushing to the fountain, discovered that the child had sunk, and could not be seen, the water being waist deep to a grown person. Without an instant's hesitation Mrs. Bird plunged into the fountain, and found her child at the bottom of the basin. She succeeded in rescuing the little fellow and dragging him to the earth before assistance arrived. The child was nearly drowned, and but for the efforts of its heroic mether would never have been rescued alive. Mrs. Bird was prostrated with excitement, but yesterday both the mother and child were doing well."

Gone to California.—Dr. H. J. Arbeely, one of Atlanta's popular young dentists, leaves today for Los Angeles, Cal., to visit his family, who left Atlanta some mouths ago because of the health of Dr. F. J. Arbeely, the well-known physician of this city. The many friends of the dector with him a pleasant journey, and hope that he will find his brother greatly improved in health. It is the intention of the family to return in the fall, as they dearly love Atlanta, her people and their hospitality.

He Is Visiting Atlanta.—Colonel A. J. Perryman, of Talbotton, is on a visit to his brother-in-law, Mr. L. W. Thomas. Mr. Perryman is one of the leading attorneys of Talbot county, and has many friends in Atlanta who are glad to see him.

Home Again.—Mr. Hal Moore, the well-known young journalist, who has been suffering for many weeks with inflammatory rheumatism, is recovering. He returned to the city after a visit to Madison, yesterday, and is again at his old quarters in the Kimball house.

She is On the Ocean.—Mrs. Soundstrom, the widow of the chemist whose body lies embalmed at Billey & Taylor's undertaking establishment, is crossing the ocean, and will reach Atlanta about te 15th. Mr. Billey has received a message from the lady stating that she sailed from Stockholm, Sweden, August 1st. She will recross the seas immediately, carrying with her the body of her husband.

He Is the Only One.—"It is the first case or record of a man refusing a postoffice appointment," said a prominent citizen of Dalton yesterday. "And yet," he continued, "that is exactly the case in Dalton. T. H. Tripplet was appointed postmaster at Dalton, but immediately telegraphed the department declining the honor. It is not known who will get the office now." The Eighth Georgia Battalion.—The Eighth Georgia Battalion, one of the best and bravest troops that went to the front, will have a grand reunion at Calhoun, in Gordon county, on the 25th instant. The committee having the exercises in charge has issued a general invitation to all confederate veterans of any and all commands.

A Perfect Nest of Them.—Deputy Collectors Retterington and Ware have unearthed a perfect nest of moonshiners near Porter Springs, in Lumpkin county. Three large illicit distilleres were captured with capacities truly wonderful not to have been disturbed before this. Nearly 5,000 gallons of beer with about fifty gallons of corn whisky were captured.

Fell From a Street Car—Lindsay Johns, while attempting to board a street car on Marietta street in front of No. 3 engine house, met with a painful accident yesterday morning. Johns lives at 440 Marietta street, and was boarding the car to go home, when his foot slipped and he fell to the street. The physician who examined Johns stated that he was internally injured, his condition being serious. The city ambulance was summoned to take the injured man to his home.

A Lively Race.—Chief Joyner, in his "little red wagon," was one of the participants in a lively race yesterday morning. The new patrol wagon was the other. The occasion was the trial of a pair of horses for the patrol wagon, and Walton street was the scene of the race. It rather startled the residents of that part of the city, but it showed the horses to be right good ones.

The fire chief won.

John Henry, Cardinal Newman, was born in London in 1801. He was a student for a num ber of years at Trinity college, Oxford, and graduated there.

His earliest mental training was received

His chief writings during this period of his life and in this connection were his "Tracts for the Times," which gave evidence in no mistaken way of the change that was finding place in his own heart and mind.

His chief Catholic work is his "Apologia Pro Vita Sua." Among his literary productions in fiction are

"Loss and Gain," and "Callista." In poetry his most widely known production is "Lead Kindly Light." All his writings have been noted for the beauty, purity and force which characterized them, and for the liberal philosophic treatment which he gave all topics. He has been characterized by a writer in The Nation as being the most illustrious man in England.

In his youth his views very strongly inclined to the evangelical school. He retained a great horror for the Roman Catholic church until 1840.

BLUE AND GOLD

THE REGULATION UNIFORM OF THE FOURTH GEORGIA.

It Will Be One of the Handsomest Outfits Ordered by Any Militia Corps in the South.

Blue and gold will be the uniform of the officers of the Fourth Georgia Battalion. And it will be one of the handsomest work by any militia corps in the south. will be the regulation uniform of the United States army, and will be made of the handsomest material procurable.

At 8 o'clock yesterday evening a number of the staff officers met in Colonel W. L. Cal-the staff office to discuss the question.

There were present Colonel W. L. Calhoun, Quartermaster Amos Fox, Paymaster Eugene Hardeman, Surgeon N. O. Harris, Quarter-master Sergeant Eugene Hewitt, Ordinance ergeant Arnold Broyles and Hospital Steward Elkin. Messrs. Hall & Bickerstaff, who represent the Pettibone Manufacturing Company, of Cincinnati, were present with samples and estimates of uniforms.

THE BLUE OR THE GRAY? There was some little discussion as whether the blue or the gray should be adopted.

Several of the officers preferred the gray, but there were certain difficulties in the way of electing either color.

The military advisory board adopted the blue sometime ago, but at the Augusta meeting a movement was made to get the different battalions in the state to wait until the meet ing of the legislature, when an effort would be made to change the statute, and make gray instead of blue the regulation color for the state

Nothing very definite, however, was done in the matter, and the question was last evening, if the staff officers of the Fourth Georgia Bat talion ordered the gray uniform the legislature might adhere to the original statute. On the other hand, if the blue was adopted the officer: might find themselves out of line in case the legislature decided to change the color back to gray. Finally it was put to a vote, and the blue won by a considerable majority, the regu-lation uniform of the United States army being adopted.

A HANDSOME UNIFORM. This is a very handsome uniform, a double breasted frock coat of dark blue, ornamented with gold cords and insignia of the various ranks; lighter blue for the pantaloons, trimmed in gold cord, and the elegant plumed helmet with its gold cord and other ornamentations.

There are six commissioned officers, including the lieutenant colonel commanding, and three non-commissioned officers. The outfit of the commissioned officers consists of a dress coat, fatigue coat, pantaloons, helmet, cap, shoulder knots, shoulder stripes, belt, light-weight saber, except the surgeon, who wears a a straght medical sword, gaunt-lets, chevrac (saddle cloth), saber knot and spurs, with a vignette for the adjutant.

This uniform will cost all the way from $100 to $130, according to the quality of the goods.

The uniform of the non-commissioned officers will cost considerably less. It will be of the same color, the coat single instead of double breasted, as the commissioned officers' are, white facings, and collar, cuffs and skirt, with gold laced chevrons and white stripes on the pantaloons, helmet with gilt mountings, belt and straight sword. belt and straight sword.

Messrs. Hall and Bickerstoff, representing the Pettibone Manufacturing Company, made estimates on the uniforms, and were the only dealers present.

The inombers of the staff generally favored them, because of the fact that they are Atlanta men, and on account of the price and compliting the goods. quality of the goods.

But it was deemed best to look carefully into the matter, and Colonel Colhoun appointed Dr. N. O. Harris, Dr. Amos Fox and Mr. Eugene Hewitt, of the commissioned officers, and Mr. Arnold Broyles and Mr. William Elkin, of the non-commissioned officers, a committee to investigate the matter—considering it immediately. This committee will meet at the office of Dr. Fox at noon today, and will discuss the matter and report to a future meeting

CHANGING THE TACTICS.

The fact that Upton's tactics are to be displaced, and that the tactical board, at Leavenworth, Kansas, is adapting new tactics that come nearer meeting the requirements and coinciding with the views of the regular army and the various militia organizations of the states, it is important that militia officers should keep track of these changes. The board desires that the militia officers

The board desires that the militia officers throughout the country shall study these changes, offer any suggestions for improvement, or correct any errors, so that the tactics, when finally adopted, may be as perfect as it is possible to make them. The address of the board is "Tactical Board, No. 515 Walnut street, Leavenworth, Kansas."

The changes in the regulations are printed in The Army and Navy Register, Washington, D. C., from time to time, and looking toward the benefit of his battalion, Colonel W. L. Calhoun has issued the following order:

THE RULES CENSURED And the Officers at the Union Depot Gates

The controversy between Captain W. D. Ellis and the gate-keeper at the union depot has been productive of much talk.

Both have their warm supporters. One Atlantian, however, seems to take both aldes of the story, and in a card says:

ATLANTA, Ga., August 11.-Editor Constituti ATLANTA, Ga., August 11.—Editor Constitution: I desire to add to the testimony of Mr. W. S. Ellis, in reference to the rules now in force at the Union passenger depot. That they are an "unmitigated nuisance" and not founded upon business principles, there is no doubt, as the following instances observed by myself and others will prove: Some months ago, while waiting for a train, and ared and niftrm gentleman accompanied by a lead. Some months ago, while waiting for a train, an aged and infirm gentleman accompanied by a lady—evidently his daughter—came into the ladies' waiting room. The old gentleman, having a ticket, was permitted to pass into the carshed, but the lady who desired to "see him off," was stopped by the door-keeper and not permitted to pass through. The old gentleman, laden with baggage, finally reached his train, watched with sad and longing eyes through barred windows by his friend. A little stretching of rules, allowing her to accompany her aged friend—to whom she was, perhaps, bidding farewell forever—would certainly have been the proper thing to do in the eyes of those who observed the incident.

Another case: A gentleman, his wife and two little children, accompanied by the porter from the Markham house, all laden with values, packages and bundles, came to take a train. The porter was not permitted to carry the baggage to the car, neither did any railroad official come to their relief and the lady became her own porter. Why not have permitted the servant to assist them to the car?

Another: A gentleman wishing to accompany and assist his sisters to a train for Macro ware.

Another: A gentleman wishing to accompany and assist his sisters to a train for Macon was required to purchase a ticket (which he did not want and did not use) to East Point before he could pass through to the carshed.

I would state, however, in justice to the door-keeper, that he, as well as all the other employes of the depot, was polite and accommodating and did not enforce the rule in any but a perfectly proper and gentlemanly manner, and that in my opinion it is the rules and not the employes who are to blane. Respectfully,

A. FEUSCH.

THE COUNTY OFFICERS The Race for County Commissioner Growing

Quite Lively.

The election for county officers this fall promises to be one of the most interesting ever known in the political history of Fulton

Just now the candidates for county commissioner are attracting the most attention.

For the first time since Fulton has had a commission the people will have a chance to vote for the members. Heretofore the commissioners have been selected by the grand and for the two vacancies there are quite a number of candidates.

One of them must come from the country.

Mr. James D. Collins, a member of the board at present, is a candidate for re-election and will push his canvass energetically. He has been endorsed by the Bolton Suballiance 1451, and is in the race to stay. In endorsing Mr. Collins the Bolton Alliance said:

Whereas, Fulton County Alliance, endorsed and was instrumental in the appointment of the Hon. James D. Collins as commissioner of roads and revenues of Fulton county for the short term; and

Whereas, The Hon. James D. Collins has occur whereas, the flon. James B. Collins has occupied the position with honor to himself and to the satisfaction of the people; therefore,

Resolved, by Bolton Suballiance, No. 1451, That we endorse him for commissioner of roads and revenues of Fulton county from the country, and urge all farmers and alliancemen to support him in the primary election, August 19, 1890.

Dr. J. W. Nelms, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the place has announced himself formally. The doctor's candidacy is based upon urgent requests of friends to enter the race. His announcement reads:

ATLANTA, Ga., August 11, 1890.—Messrs. E. P. Chamberlin, W. H. Brotherton, E. P. Howell, John J. Falvey, Dr. H. Mozley and Others. Gentlemen: In compliance with your request published July 4th, I hereby announce myself a candidate for county commissioner for Fulton county, subject to the democratic nomination. Respectfully, John W. Nelms, M. D.
Mr. E. F. Donehoo, who was a formidable quantity in the contest last week, has written a card, on which he not only declines to run, but in which he asserts that he is not in the race.

Major M. C. Kiser, Mr. John M. Miller Mr. T. J. Buchanan, Mr. W. D. Austin and Captain W. A. Stearns have been mentioned For clerk, sheriff, tax receiver, tax assessed and coroner no formal announcements have been made. All the present officers are can-didates for re-election, but none of them have perfected their tickets.

Those who are in the race are anxious for a primary, so that their fate can be settled. They all prefer a primary to a general election, and are willing to have it at once.

SOUTHERN MARBLE.

It Is Growing More Popular Every Day and Is Displacing Northern Material. The Cahttanooga Times has been interviewing a well-known marble dealer about south ern marble.

"It has been only about three years ago," said the dealer, "since southern marble began to be used for cemetery purposes. Long before that it ranked the market for furniture tops, and its standing was good for building purposes, but it was thought to be too gritty for cemetery work. The Producers' Marble Company, of Vermont, held the entire southern trade, and almost owned the dealers down here. But when the change came it came rapidly, and a year ago the representative of the Producers' Marble Company who had been with them for years, quit in disgust, and went into the retail business. It was found that the southern marble could be was found that the southern marble could be worked advantageously, and its color gives better satisfaction than the color of the eastern marble. The Little Dorset, Southerland Falls, Rutland or American-Italian quarries, in a few years, will rank lower than the north Georgia or East Tennessee stone. "There is now very little call for Italian marble, and still less Italian marble used. America will be the marble market of the world in a few years, and the south will be the section which will supply the most of the stone. I do not anticipate any sudden boom, but there will be a rapid and continuous growth in the business in this section.

STATE VERSUS FEDERAL.

Bailiff A. N. Cox Arrests Two Federal Soldiers on a Serious Charge. The state and federal authorities, civil and military, came in contact yesterday.

And the soldiers surrendered to the bailiff without a bit of resistance. The case was this way. Corporal Clarke, of the Fourth artillery, lost his watch Sunday, and he suspected that Private John Benton with Private W. M. Scott, as accessory, had purloined it. So he came to the city and swore out a warrant for their arrest, before Judge Landrum. Bailiff A. N. Cox was given the warrant. He drove out to McPherson barracks in search of the culprits. He was received with every possible courtesy by Major Holbrook, who, in the absence of the Private Scott was easily found, and submitted quietly to the arrest. But Private Benton was in the city, and was not found until sometime after the return of the bailiff to the city, but when found submitted to arrest. Both of them were lodged in the station house by Bailiff Cox.

They will have a preliminary hearing before Judge Landrum, at his office, 28½ Decatur street, at nine o'clock this morning.

CIDE YESTERDAY.

Warren Dodgen, a carpenter living at No. 2 Warner's avenue, swallowed the contents of a bottle containing an ounce of laudanum ometime between 9 and 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Physicians and friends worked hard with him until late in the afternoon, when Dodgen allied and was thought to be beyond danger. Dodgen's family and friends are at a loss to nderstand the motive for his suicidal attempt, and since taking the poisonous drug he has not recovered sufficiently to talk. Dodgen has been working for sometime for

Nunn & Fluker, contracting carpenters, and up to yesterday morning, or Saturday evening rather, had been engaged on several houses being erected on Pulliam street. He is a good workman and, so far as is known, has not complained or threatened to do himself injury, of recent date, though a good while ago he made an ineffectual attempt at suicide. Yesterday morning Dodgen did not leave home until after the usual hour, but made no excuse to his family. After lingering about the yard for an hour or so, he started out to the place at which he was working, on Pulliam There he talked among his fellow-workmen short while, then writing a brief note, asking that his tools be gathered up and sent to-his home if he did not come back to work again, placed it upon the too lchest of one of Mr. Fluker found the note before Dodgen left the premises, and suspecting that some-thing was wrong, sought him. After talking the note over Dodgen admitted that he had had it in his mind to kill himself. Mr. Fluker walked part of the way home with him, and when they parted, it was with a promise on Dodgen's part that he would go nome and attempt nothing of the sort. But Dodgen did not keep his promise. stead he turned and went to Jacobs's drug store, where he bought an ounce of laudanum.

Stepping into an alley he drank the content of the bottle, dropping the little phial back nto his pocket again. Then he took his way towards home, reaching there just before 10 o'clock. Ashe entered the gate his daughter noticed that he walked unsteadily and that his eyes had a strange expression in them. Dodgen went on in the house, his daughter following.

"Why, papa, what's the matter?" she exclaimed, as he walked toward a little work-stand in the corner of the room. "I'm going to die," was the answer he made. At the same instant he pulled the empty audanum bottle out of his coat pocket and placed it to his lips. The young girl, at first horrified at the situation, with a desperate effort snatched the bottle from his hand before the cork was withdrawn. But the father had already swallowed all the poison, except a few drops that remained at the bottom. In a few moments its effect upon him was complete. He sank in a stuper upon the bed by the side of his little boy, a child of

Dr. Warner was summoned, but when he reached the bedside Dodgen was almost be youd the reach of relief. Restoratives were administered, but for a good while it seeme that all the antidotes would fail. Finally however, Dodgen revived, under the vigorous treatment of the physicians, and late in the evening was considered out of danger.

Dodgen is a widower, his wife having died last March. He has four children, two boys and two girls, two of the children being quite small.

He is about thirty-seven years old, and is not known as a drinking man.

What moved him to take such a desperate step nobody knows.

paper copied from THE CONSTITUTION," said an old Tennesseean yesterday, "and for the sake of the truth of history I desire to correct a mistake your correspondent in Akheville, N. C., made.

"In speaking of the election of James K. Polk to the presidency he seems to believe that it was Mr. Polk's success in the gubernatorial contest in Tennessee, immediately preceding the presidential contest of 1844, which gave him the nomination that year for president. This is a mistake. Mr. Polk was never but once elected governor of Tennessee, and that was in 1839-five years before his election to the presidency. He was beaten for governor in 1841 and 1843 by James C. Jones. He was not, in the usual acceptation of the word, candidate for president in 1844, but, the national convention failing to agree upon either of the pronounced candidates, Mr. Polk was introduced as a dark horse or compromise candidate and

Mr. Fitzgerald defeated him for congress in 1831, and he defeated Fitzgerald in 1833. He was again defeated by Adam Huntsman in 1835, after which he went to Texas. I heard Crockett and Huntsman in the courthouse at Huntingdon, in June, 1835, and heard Huntsma boastfully tell the people that he was going to be elected to congress. Crockett, when he came to reply, alluding to Huntsman's boast, said he did not believe a word of it, and remarked that if they elected Huntsman over him, 'they might all go to hades, and he would go to Texas.' Huntsman did defeat him, and he was as good as his word—and

Is your system full of malari? Do you feel weak and mean all over? Have you got the ague? Then why don't you do something to get well? You say quinine dosen't do you any good. Well you needn't let that discourage you. There is one remedy, Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky., that is far ahead of quinine. It will cure chills and fever when quinine and everything else fails. This remedy never has failed. In some neighborhoods where chills and fever are common, it is found in every household. Why a man woud as soon refuse his family food to eat, as to refuse to get another bottle of Smith's Tonic Syrup when the old bottle gave out. It is a great preventive of ague. PIEDMONT CHAUTAUQUA The Exercises at the Tabernacle Yesterday-

Programme for Today.

Never was finer August weather than the people at Lithia Springs enjoyed yesterday— clear and beautiful sunshine, with a cool and bracing wind from the north—delightful every one voted it, and every one improved to get out to the exercises at the tabernacle and lec-ture hall. The 11 o'clock hour was occupied by Dr. Gillett; in another lecture on "The Four Gospels, the Authors, Their History, Peculiaritles and Qualifications for the Work." The time and place at which each book was written, the classes for whom each writer did his work, the style of each, the subject which dominated his work and the places of Jesus characters presented in each book of Jesus characters presented in each book were among the interesting things discussed. From 2:30 to 3 o'clock p. m. the Weber reed band entertained the people. At 3 o'clock Mr. Leon H. Vincent delivered the first of a series of six lectures on literary topics. The subject of yesterday's lecture was "Byron," and it was handled in a most interesting manner. There is something indescribable about Mr. Vincent's style, which at once claims the attention of his auditors; and having once obtained it he never releases his hold for a moment. He has excellent literary judgment and is thoroughly conscientious in his work. Slavish admirers of Byron—and there are a few such—would not have enjoyed Mr. Vinand is thoroughly conscientious in his work. Slavish admirers of Byron—and there are a few such—would not have enjoyed Mr. Vincent's analysis of the character of the poet, but even his admirers could not complain of unfair treatment in his expression of his opinion regarding the brilliant and beautiful things which came from his pen. On the whole, Byron could be spared much better than Tennyson, or Browning, or even Shelley. The lecture contained humorous allusions, which were promptly recognized and appreciated. The attendance at the first list lecture, and the interest manifested, promises well for the succeeding lectures in the series.

The usual chorus rehearsal and C. L. S. C. Round Table followed. At the latter, arrangements were completed for the recognition service, reception and camp fire of today.

The interest in Dr. Dickerman and his lectures has been growing since the first one, on Friday night last, and a good audience was present last night, to hear about sent last night, to hear about THE PHARAOHS OF EGYPT.

The subject was introduced by reference to the surpassing importance of men and mind over matter. The government of the Egyp-tian state was of the Pharaoh, for the Pharaoh and by the Pharaoh. The origin of the word Pharaoh was given, and the manner in which Pharaoh was given, and the manner in which the numerous and high-sounding titles of the king arose, was briefly related. The vexations to which Pharaoh was exposed were also narrated. The speaker passed in review the sources of our information respecting the Egyptians, viz.: The more famous papyri which have been found. The growth of the royal costume from the simplest fig leaf was illustrated, and a picture given of the appearance of a royal family, just driving out from the palace gate with the king's courtiers, chamberlains and fan-bearers.

A brief history was given of the work chamberlains and fan-bearers.

A brief history was given of the work of Menes, the George Washington of Egypt, when the lecturer passed briefly over those dynasties which have less popular interest than some others, and portrayed somewhat elaborately the men and the times of the famous XVIII. and XIX. dynastiies. This included the famous Queen Hatasu, "the first promoter of a peaceful commerce in the history of the world, and the patron of the most." included the famous Queen Hatasu, "the first promoter of a peaceful commerce in the history of the world, and the patron of the most graceful, symmetrical monuments that ever left the hands of an Egyption artist." The reign of Thotmes III, "the Alexander of Egypt," was passed in review, and then the audience was treated to a full description of the royal mummies found at Dier-el-Bahari in the summer of 1881. The pictures of the place where they were found, of Professor Maspero unrolling Ramses II in the presence of the khedive and his cabinet, and of many of the ancient kings, was peculiarly interesting. Attention was called to the characteristics of the great Ramses, and to the place in history to be ascribed to the sojourn in Egypt of the "Sons of the Covenant." The question was also raised "To whom does the name of Sesostris belong?"

The lecture closed with a brief sketch! of the brilliant reign of Ramses III, drawing the lesson of the certain progress of thought—and lesson of the certain progress of thought—and of the ultimate freedom of the human mind. GRAMME FOR TODAY

A THROUGH SCHEDULE FROM AT-

Over the Marietta and North Georgia-What the Railroads All Over the State Are Doing-Personal Mention.

It is expected that by next Monday a through schedule can be put on between Atlanta and Knoxville, on the Marietta and North Georgia railroad.

The work on the Knoxville Southern is being pushed night and day, and the line is now practically completed from Marietta to

The Knoxville Southern is the Tennesse end of the Marietta and North Georgia. From Marietta the trains came in over the Western and Atlantic. The new route will shorten by fifty miles the distance between Atlanta and Knoxville. This practically gives Atlanta an entirely new line to Knoxville, competitive with the East Tennessee, and opens a new and wonderfully rich tributary section of country.

It is understood that the Marietta and North Georgia will set about building from Marietta to Atlanta just as soon as the work on the Knoxville Southern is completed.

A charter for this Atlanta extension, it will be remembered, was granted by the last legis-

The credit is due very largely to Mr. W. B. Thomas, of Tennille, Ga. But throughout it was built by Georgia pluck, enterprise and money, and the state ought to be proud of it.

It is the Dublin and Wrightsville. The story is of general as well as technical interest. There's a moral in it.

Society of Civil Engineers, by Mr. Arthur Pew.

In 1884 the Dublin and Wrightsville railroed was incorporated to build a railway between the two Georgia villages named in its title. The distance between the places was about nineteen miles, and the sum of $22,600 was subscribed for the construction. Only 75 per cent of this amount would certainly be paid in, but Mr. W. B. Thomas, the president and superintendent, hoped to raise the full sum by subsequent subscriptions. The right of way was given free of cost in nearly every case by the adjoining property holders.

The lack of money necessitated an extremely economical construction.

After the location was finished a gang of forty convicts, at $1 per day each, began the grading. The greater part of the line was through a forest of excellent pine timber, which supplied the wood for ties and trestles. A width of road just sufficient for the grading was first opened for a distance of several miles, and then the men returned and cleared the whole right of way. The roadway was 14 feet wide on cuts and 10 feet on fills, the cost of the grading being 9 cents per cubic yard. The creasties cost 9 or 10 cents each and were laid every 2 feet. The grading averaged something less than 4,000 cubic yards per mile.

The first annual price.

The first annual report of the president showed

The trestles and ties were all made by convicts under the direction of skilled foremen at less than half the usual price.

The first annual report of the president showed that 11.5 miles of road was completed and in operation. The track was standard gauge, laid with a forty-five-pound iron rail and fastened with fish plates. The total cost of preparing the road bed for the rails was $13.332, $700 of which was for the right of way, $1,131 for engineering, $11,558 for grading, crosstles and trestles. The cost per mile, then, was $1,165. The iron rails were furnished and laid $1,800 a mile by the Georgia Central railroad, of which line the Dublin and Wrightsville was a feeder. The extension of the road from the level plain inentioned above to the Ocone river was the most expensive part of the line, costing more than five times as much per mile as the remainder of the road.

road. In the second annual report of the president, it was shown that the completed road, ready for the rolling stock, had cost $3,441 per mile, or $65,381 in all.

In all.

The character of the business was such that nearly all of the freight was received and shipped in foreign cars, and $1,000 per mile would have paid for the necessary rolling stock had any been needed. Fortunately, the Dublin and Wrightswille railroad is simply an extension of the Wrightsville and Tennille railroad, which possessed a rolling stock sufficiently large to handle the traffic of both lines. A contract was soon formed by which the trains of the latter railroad were run over both lines, thirty-five miles in all, and the expenses of running them were to be divided.

The actual cost, then, of the railway with its road in operation, was only $3,441 per mile. The earnings have always exceeded the expenses, and from the surplus the roadway has been widened, objectionable grades and curves improved, new stations built, twenty miles of new steel rails laid, cars and engines purchased and annual dividends of 6% per cent paid.

All Over the State.

All Over the State.

Mr. Courtenay de Kalb, a mining engineer whose tropical experience has made him an authority on such matters, says that Georgia pine is the finest wood on earth for ship building. The assertion is often heard in tropical countries that none but the English can censtruct vessels which will hold together under the severe tests to which the heat and moisture of such climates subject them. One reason assigned for this is that they employ teak, an East Indian wood unobtainable by Americans; but in the face of all this exists the fact that the oldest boat on the Amazon was built in the United States, and that with the exception of her iron hull, the material used in her construction was none other than Georgia pine, known in various sections of the country as yellow, hard, or long leaf pine, which, by reason of being so heavily charged with pitch, has been found to last three times as long as teak.

The Raiiroad Gazette says, commenting on this statement: "This is a very important and interesting fact, for there is probably no more trying climate in the world than that of the Amazon, and our Georgia pine can be furnished at much less cost than teak in all countries, unless it is India, and probably could compete in price with it on the seashore of that country in quantities large enough to freight a vessel."

The survey for the Albany, Florida and Northern between Albany and Cordele, which was completed about a week ago, is a direct line between the two points, the distance being thirty-five miles. The grading has been commenced. The Georgia and Alabama Construction Company, of Cordele has the contract for the grading, A. R. Coulter & Co., of Americus, for the trestling, and Stewart Bros., of Americus, for the trestling, and Stewart Bros., of Americus, for the cross ties. The work is very light, the maximum grade being 52.8 feet per mile and the maximum grade being 52.8 feet per mile and the maximum curves three degrees. W. W. Campbell, of Cordele, is chief engineer. Contracts are yet to be let for the tracklaying and two iron bridges—one 250 feet long and the other 100 feet long. Nelson Tift, Albany, Ga., is president, Headquarters of company, Albany, Ga.

It is stated that the Atlantic Coast line has agreed to extend the Manchester and Augusta road from the Santee river through South Carolina and to Augusta, Ga., if free right of way and station grounds are obtained through Augusta. A survey has been made for an extention of the Scotland Neck brynch from a point near Greenville, easterly, a distance of about twenty miles to Washington, N. C., the southern terminus of the Jamesville and Washington.

The extension of the Georgia, Carolina and Northern from Chester has been opened for regular business as far as Whitmire, eleven miles this side of Fishdam, S. C. The survey for the Albany, Florida and North

MAGIC MACHEN

WILL BUILD THE MIDDLE GEOR-

The Outlook for a New and Direct Connec tion Between Atlanta and Savannah-What Machen Has Done.

A gentleman at the head of one of the most successful railroads in the south said, a few days ago, that the Middle Georgia and At-lantic railroad would be built; that he had not thought much about it when it was first talked of, but now, he said, "It is giving a good many people anxious reflections."

"Said he, "I do not know anything of Machen's resources or his methods of raising noney, nor do I think anybody else does, but I do know that he gets it somewhere, and if he relies solely on his own personal efforts it is so much more to his credit. He certainly gets it from somewhere, for the bills of lading upon which he gets his rails and supplies show that everything is paid for by him before he calls for them. After all, this is the safest way to build a railroad, and shows that he has reised the money in advance.

The gentleman in addition said that "Machen seems to have such unlimited confidence in the theory upon which he is build-ing his road and the country through which it runs that it is calculated to win converts.

"You see," he said, "he is building a road so that it will command the sympathy of both of the largest cities in Georgia, and by reason of its being the shortest route it will naturally enlist their paternity in case he gets to a point where he has to call for help."-

Mr. Machen uses a most peculiar and effective business argument when north, and that argument is that he follows Sherman's march to the sea all the way. It is well known that Sherman was striking at the very heart of Georgia, so as to cut off the richest supply section of the confederacy, and Mr. Machen argues that his line will run directly through that country, and 20 per cent shorter from Atlanta to Savannah than any other road. "It tell you," he said, "it's an unanswerable argument."

But for the fact that this conversation was overheard under circumstances that preclude the publication of names, The Constitution would surprise people who have thought but lit-tle of the Middle Georgia and Atlantic railroad. With the line from Eatonton to Machen now in operation eighteen miles, with its connections, it shortens the time from Eatonton to Atlanta five hours. The line will soon be finished from Covington to Machen, which will shorten the time at least two hours more, and will give Atlanta direct entrance into that section of country that has been practice. that section of country that has been practi-

THE CONSTITUTION is not advised as to whether Mr. Machen is building his line to operate or to sell, but at any rate it is of so much importance to our city to have the road that it would be wise for us to look into the matter, and at once, to see if encouragement is needed.

The city of Atlanta cannot afford to lose sight of a line that promises a route sixty miles shorter to the sea, and through the richest and most populous part of Georgia.

The people along the line are enthusiasticly in its favor, because they desire close relations with Atlanta and Savannah, and this road will only be a few miles longer than an air-line. From Covington to Atlanta will only be thirty-one miles as against forty-one by the oe thirty-one miles, as against forty-one by the Georgia railroad, besides, it will open up new granite fields and furnish the competition so arnestly sought after by the quarrymen.

The Alabama Midland Opening. SAVANNAH, Ga., August 11 .- [Special.] - A arge number of busness men are expected to join the excursion that leaves here for Montgomery, Ala., tomorrow for the purpose of looking at the country along the line of the recently opened Alabama Midland and perhaps stopping over at several points for a day or two for the purpose of establishing business relations with the merchants along the road.

THE CENTRAL AND ITS CHARTER Possibility that It May Be Surrendered and a New One Asked For.

SAVANNAH, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]— The Central railroad may surrender its charter at the next session of the legislature. Of course it will want a new one, in that event. Perhaps a modification of the present charter can be made which will be satisfactory. If the old one is given up the Central will be subject to taxation, from which it is now ex empt. The objection to the old charter is that it restricts the company in making financial arrangements. For instance, a large loan was on the point of being negotiated with an English syndicate, when a question arose over the authority of the Central to issue the bonds in question. The matter was thoroughly examined by lawyers, and the syndicate was advised not to conclude the negotiation at present. General Alexander, who returned from New York this morning, when asked about the report said that the subject of having the Central's charter modified has long been discussed; as yet, though, no decision has been arrived at. "Nothing would be asked of the general assembly," said the president, "that is not given to other reads.' The president went on to explain that railroads need large sums of money constantly to make improvements required of increasing traffic. To illustrate, he mentioned that Pres ident Roberts, of the Pennsylvania railroad, states in his last report that his company needs $6,000,000 a year for improvements. The Central has great improvements in view at different points. These cannot be made out of the net earnings. But the road's earning capacity would be so increased that the company could well afford to pay interest on the cost of improvements. A financial plan, long considered, contemplates the issue of a blanket mortgage bond on the entire Central system. Such a bond issued under a charter allowing it would be taken abroad and would bring millions of dollars to Georgia.

THE COMMITTEE WHICH WENT TO TENNESSEE RETURNS.

The Hedge Fence Carefully Investigated-Those Interested in It to Meet at the Kimball.

Dr. Henry L. Wilson, Captain John A. Miller, Major Joseph Kingsbery, Mr. Edward C. Peters and Mr. Edward Wackendorff, the committee representing the exposition com pany, have returned from Tennessee, where they went to examine hedge fences.

The Dayton Hedge Company proposed to build a hedge fence around the exposition grounds, and asked the exposition company to appoint a committee to go to Tennessee, at the expense of the company, to examine the merits of the fence.

The committee made a thorough investiga tion of the hedge fences, and since its return has submitted the following report to Captain

ATLANTA, Ga., August 11, 1800.-Captain J. R. Wylie, President and General Manager Piedment Exposition Company. Dear Sir: Your commit-tee, appointed to accompany Messrs. Samuel Johnson and H. B. Merrott to Tennessee to ex-Johnson and H. B. Merrott to Tennessee to examine into the merits of the hedges built by the Dayton Hedge Company, of Ohio, with reference to placing said hedge around our exposition grounds, submit the following report.

On reaching Memphis we were shown hedges of different ages, and in different stages, shapes and growths. We saw the young plants one year old that were transferred from the west, where they are raised in great shundance from the seed. We are raised in great abundance from the seed. We saw them at two years old, after the hedge had been replanted. Then we examined the wired hedge, three years old, having four strands of barbed wire, held in position by staples driven into the sides by a patented tool that carries 100 staples. This beautiful gun acts like a charm and does the work very rapidly. Next we were shown a large curved knife for trimming and shaping the hedge. With this instrument an or-dinary laborer can cut the hedge in a slow walk, easily trimming a mile a day on both sides of a hedge. We found that the owners of these hedges prize them very highly, and say that they are worth a dozen plank or rail fences. We next visited Union City, where we found the hedge in all stages, and of every age up to eight and nine years old, and the older the hedge the better we liked them. Every year adds value. The older ones are canable of resisting any animal from a dog to a bull. Hogs are turned into the lane when corn is growing in the fields. We saw corn and cotton growing in luxuriance within two feet of the hedge. In fact, the crops are cultivated as near the hedge as a man can walk We found no sprouts or runners near the hedge. not even those nine years old. The process of cut ting the lateral roots seems to forever prevent the side roots from growing or giving any trouble, even near the oldest hedge. We were shown a large number of tools that were patented, that seem to give them perfect control of the plant.

When you stand upon an elevation and see miles of this straight hedge around the growing crops, it is really a thing of beauty, and cer-tainly enhances very greatly the value of the farms they enclose. We find absolutely nothing objectionable about this plant, and on account of its durability, cheapness and beauty, we think it the coming fence of the country. We also regard it as exactly the right thing for fencing our expo-sition grounds, and feel satisfied from our personal examination of a big amount of this fence that in a very few years it would be impossible for intruders or outsiders to see through or mount the hedge. Ten dollars a year will trim and put in perfect order all of the hedge necessary to enclose perfect order all of the hedge necessary to enclose our entire grounds. We found no disposition to die out in the hedges of any age. The plant was green and healthy in the oldest hedge from the ground to the very top. In a word, we regard this fence everything that the owners claim for it.

Telephone No. 116. Conveyances Always Ready to Show You Real Estate.

ORMEWOOD PARK is that beautiful tract of 100 acres just east of Grant Park and north of the Confederate Veterans' Home property. It is within one-fourth mile of Grant Park, Little Switzerland and the dummy line as it goes around the park. The dummy line to the home runs for a half mile through Ormewood, thus making every lot in the park very accessible. A large force of hands under the direction of Major Charles Boeckh is now at work grading out avenues and drives. A beautiful avenue 60 feet wide, leading direct from Grant Park and the Boulevard, has already been graded through Ormewood, thus affording one of the most attractive drives around the city. Drive out there this evening and see for yourself. Mr. Harry Woodward has just completed a handsome $4,500 residence at the head of Ormewood avenue, and several more of equal value will be erected shortly by some of our best citizens. The entire 100 acres has been subdivided in the most advantageous manner, and the lots are from one-half to three acres each. No smaller lots will be sold. To those who will rect desirable residences we will sell those lots on most liberal terms. and the lots are from one-half to three acres each. No smaller lots will be sold. To those who will erect desirable residences we will sell these lots on most liberal terms, it being the object of the owners to build up this beautiful park with first-class houses rather than sell to speculators. There is no location about the city that is as free from every objectionable feature as this property, and if you seek a suburban home you can do no better than select a lot here. Our prices are from 100 to 200 per cent below that asked for property equally

"What will be done at the meeting of the executive committee next Thursday night?' he was asked.

"The object of the meeting," he replied, "is to formulate some definite plan of action for the league. The meeting is called for the purpose of revising the constitution and by-laws the league so as to a more definite shape to the affairs of the organization.

"We need new and better laws governing the membership of the league; we must have a definite roll of members; we must have a larger membership; records must be kept. and, in fact, the league must be a formally organized body of democrats.

"At the meeting next Thusday night the executive committee will decide upon some laws for the government of the league, and will call a meeting of the league for an early date to endorse and act upon the laws that we wil submit."

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S VIEWS. "The interest in the league was never higher than it is now," said President Johnson yesterday.

"The members seem to have all awakened to a full realization of the necessity of keeping in preservation the power of the organization, and everybody seems to want a permanent and thorough formation of the league.

"The executive committee will call a meeting of the league this week, at which a full set of laws, platforms, etc., will be submitted for endorsement. There is a movement on foot to get the club under better headway, and it is probable that the most important meeting ever known to the history of the league will take place this week."

CHILDHOO

When an infant my body broke out all over with an eruption or rash, which became more aggravated as I grew older. Every noted physician in our section was tried or consulted. When I came of age I visited Hot Springs, Ark., and was treated by the best medical men, but was not benefited. When all things had failed I determined to the SS not benefited. When all things had failed I determined to try S. S. S., and in four months was entirely cured. The terrible Eczema was all gone, not a sign left; my general health built up, and I have never had any return of the disease.

WHICH SAYS DON'T MARRY A NEWS-PAPER MAN.

The Unpleasant Experience of a Pretty Wife at the Little Village of Bay Grove, New Jersey.

From The New York Times. Pretty Mrs. Blank had a very unpleasant experience in Bay Grove, N. J., and it was all due to a mistake. When she moved herself and her baby and her pug and her other household goods to Jersey, along in the spring, the villagers seemed to be ready to take her to their arms and their hearts. They gave her teas, they showed her all the show sights of the neighborhood, they posted her on the proper church to attend and the proper people to know. They almost gave a din-per in her honor, and that is something that had not been even dreamed of since an unfortunate affair of several year; back, Incident that made people hesitate, and by their hesitating Mrs. Blank lost the dinner. She was bright, her maid's caps were irre-proachable and what flirting she did was arproachable and what firting she did was artistic enough to be a pleasure to look upon. But it was seldom Mrs. Blank was artistic in that way, and therefore she was popular with matrons and maids. The men liked her, too, and all went merry as a marriage bell for many day and until somebody ill-naturedly asked when a heartless detective had appeared at a least and had carried away with him one who for a brief month had had all Bay Grove at his feet. It was the remembrance of that touching and all weth herry as a harriage belt for many a day and until somebody ill-naturedly asked a question.

"Where is Mr. Blank and who is he?" queried this busybody.

Nobody but Mrs. Blank could answer this, and she didn't volunteer any information on the subject. So, gossip, having nothing to feed upon, grew rapidly, as is generally the way, and in a week Bay Grove began to believe that something must be very wrong somewhere. Now, it happened that Mrs. Blank had brought one letter of introduction to Bay Grove. This epistle had been hurriedly penned by a young woman about to take a flight to Europe, and, under the scrutiny of a female committee of investigation, it appeared to lack satisfactory details about the nominal head of the Blan Jamily.

"I do so hope you will like Mrs. B.," it ran. "She can see so little of her husband, you know, that it will be very dull for her out there unless you look after her a bit. I think the frets over her husband sometimes, but how can it be helped now? But then she has—"

And here the writer drifted into matters that were never intended for the public eye. When the letter was received the sentences about the hasband had attracted no attention; but now, with suspicion resting heavily upon them, the committee women agreed that but now, with suspicion resting heavily upon them, the committee women agreed that something must be very, very wrong with Mrs. Blank's spouse. It came about, there-fore, that Mrs. Blank was soon put to the question.

"When are we to see your husband?" asked one of her friends in a guileless way.

Mrs. Blank pouted. "Really, I don't know," she said. "He is in Auburn now with that poor wretch Kemmler, I believe."

Auburn her men to contain a prison Kemm. poor wretch Kemmler, I believe."

Auburn happens to contain a prison. Kemmler was then in that prison. It is not difficult to put one and one together and get a dozen, if you are in a proper frame of mind for the achievement. So it happened that when Mrs. Blank entered church the next day there was

Blank entered church the next day there was a rustle of silk all through the pews, and with it a general feeling that the sermon should deal with hypocrisy. But it didn't. It was devoted to mercy. Which only goes to show that preachers are not always in touch with that preachers are not always in touch with their congregations.

When Mrs. Blank joined the group in the vestibule after the service, the church thermometer hanging there dropped half a dozen degrees. Nobody quite cut her—the sermon had been really a good one—but the social atmosphere was full of little icicles. Mrs. B'ank went home alone, wondering what was the matter.

The next day one of her closest friends

The next day one of her closest friends called upon her. Just as the visitor was departing she indulged in a sort of spoken post-script, saving the important part of her business for the last, just as if she were writing a letter

"How is Mr. Blank?" she queried.
"He has been sent to Elmira," was the

As there is a reformatory in Elmira, this proved to be a very unfortunate response. Bay Grove posted itself on New York's penal institutions, and the next day three acquaint-ances of Mrs. Blank failed to see her on the ances of Mrs. Blank thateful is see her on the street. Nobody called, and her name did not appear on the list of patronesses of a straw-berry festival the village was pledged to make a glorious success. She attended the festiviand was greatly puzzled by her tment. Everybody seemed to shun was popularly understood to have gone very wrong in a big wholesale store in the city. He wrong in a big wholesaie store in the city. He had never paid her much attention before, but now he treated her like a friend and a sister. Finally there came another caller at the Blank cottage. She came up like one bent on business that is distasteful, but must be done. She was, by the way, the person to whom the letter had been addressed.

"My dear," she said, without parley, "where is your husband.

"Why, he has gone to Sing Sing," replied

ess, wondering at her caller's manner. She was still more surprised at what she heard

"When I was a girl we were taught to be truthful above all things. You are younger than I, and perhaps times have changed; but than I, and perhaps times have changed; but I prefer that my daughter should not meet you after this."

And then she swept away, full of dignity, to lay before Bay Grove the problem how any one man, no matter how wicked he might be, could be in Auburn, Elmira, and Sing Sing within a month. As for Mrs. Blank she was very indignant, and then she wept, and then she was indignant again. Then she wrote a letter

The letter brought an answer in the shape of a young man in a slouch hat, who came down by a late train and went directly to the Blank cottage. He sat with Mrs. Blank on the piazza, and they talked earnestly for a long time. It was nearly midnight when the contime. It was nearly mining at when the conference ended. Then the young man started for the gate. Mrs. Blank followed him, and they stood talking together by the posts for two or three minutes. It was a beautifully clear moonlight night, and anybody in the neighborhood could have seen the young man kiss Mrs. Blank when he went way. He can git a very lett train for the city.

away. He caught a very late train for the city.

Now, nobody in Bay Grove would willingly play the cavesdropper or the spy. That goes without saying. But, as a matter of fact, several pairs of eyes saw the parting in the moon-light, and as many pairs of ears heard the man say: "Well, dear, I'll be down here in a week, and then it won't matter what these people say or do."

A pretty woman, with a husband in three jails in a month and a mysterious midnight visitor! Bay Grove was scandalized. There could be no doubt after that that nobody in the village knew the offender. She seemed to have gained invisibility. Nobody saw her when she went out; at least, nobody gave any sign of seeing her. Even the scapegrace gave her up—which meant a great deal, for he believed that he had only his wickedness to pride himself upon.

Six days passed and a caller again rang the door bell at the cottage. He noticed with a shudder that the wire seemed to be getting rusty for want of use. That touched him, for he was the landlord and he hated to see the property depreciate. He had come to tell his pretty tenant that she must seek other quarters. She paid the rent regularly, but pressure had been brought to bear upon him—and his family had social aspirations, and he couldn't afford to disregard pressure.

He stammered, but was firm. Mrs. Blank was amazed, but loquacious. He explained that the cottage must be vacated at once. She declared that such a proceeding was unheard of. She tried to break down his resolution, but failed. Then she showed signs of getting hysterical.

"Oh, if my husband was only here!" she wailed.

"Yes, madam, if he were, but he ain't."

That was as near to sarcasm as the landlord ever came. He was a philanthropist by nature and a preserver of village morality by necessity.

sity.
"Hello, what's all this?" said somebody in the doorway. Landlord and tenant turned like a flash. Mrs. Blank gave a shriek of de-light, and threw herself into the new com-mer's arms. The landlord looked disgusted. He merely saw a young man in a slouch hat, mer's arms. The landlord looked disgusted. He merely saw a young man in a slouch hat, no doubt the midnight visitor.

"I think you had better go as soon as you can, both of you," he said.

"Well, that's cool. I've paid the rent of this houre and I mean to stay, especially as it suits my wife, or did until the neighbors went crazy." This was from the young man.

The landlerd looked dazed. "Your wife!" he said. "Why, then, you're her husband."

"Naturally," said the young man dryly. "And now," he added, "what is all this to-do about anyway?"

bout anyway?"

He heard all about it in the next ten min-

He heard all about it in the next ten minutes, although it was a sadly disconnected story. S.ill, he got the gist of it pretty clearly. Then he addressed the landlord:

"Look here; you don't deserve an explanation, but I'll give you one. My business is to see things and to write about them. I have been employed by a magazine to describe certain features of prison life in New York. To see them I have had to study the prisons carefully, and it has taken six weeks of hard work. In that time I've had just time enough to spend one evening at home and then harry back to work. And now I come down here for a rest and find that you people have gone mad and treated my wife disgracefully. Somebody is going to smart for this."

As a matter of fact a good many people did and treated my wife disgracefully. Somebody is going to smart for this."

As a matter of fact a good many people did smart, but only mentally, and, therefore, they survived and were anxious to make amends.
The landlord withdrew his demands and agreed to put in a new well curb. Those who knew him say he suffered enough over this to atone for all he had done. Then came flocks of feminine visitors to the cottage, full of tears and explanations and contrition. The Blanks had determined to go away, but these good people wouldn't hear of it. They showered the cottagers with attentions, and then they did something that settled it that the Blanks would continue in Bay Grove. They played their trump card.
They gave Mrs. Blank a dinner, and Mr.
Blank's determination to depart gave way.
He and his wife are the pride of Bay Grove now.

Warning. Many internal remedies are glibly advertised, to shorten labor and lessen the pains of Child-Birth, and with wonderful inconsistency to regulate menstruation. Common sense should teach any woman that a preparation adapted for menstrual disorders will not prepare the system for Child-Birth. We earnestly say, beware of all such; they can at this critical time do no good, and their use may be fatal. It is only by persistent external treatment, thus relaxing and softening all the parts, tha the dread hour is robbed of its pain and terror and no remedy on earth does this but "Mother's Friend." The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

NEW YORK, August 11.—After the great ad-antages given the bears by the New York Central strike, the wiping out of bank reserves and the unusually severe drop in the condition of all cereal crops in the past month, as indicated by the government. ernment crop report, they were inclined to push their movement for lower prices today, and although there was undoubtedly considerable sup-port given certain stocks, and the covering of shorts by local operators was of no mean proportions, prices were forced off from ½ to 1½ per cent throughout the list. Early London figures were materially lower than those of Saturday, and the pressure was renewed, so that the opening was generally at small fractions below the final figures of Saturday, while Lake Shore was down 1 per cent and Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis and Rock Island ¾ each. Outside of the specialties there was no further immediate material decline. An unusually large business decline was soon checked and a rally inaugurated, in which the early losses were generally recovered. After the early liquidation was completed, however, money began to stiffen rapidly, and toward the close reached 25 per cent on call, with little erings. The close was at 20 bid; without offers. Under the circumstances the recovery could not be held, and prices again slowly shaded, and the close of the market was heavy to weak while quiet. The afternoon's decline was marked by no wide movements outside of Sugar Refineries, but even the last named failed to make its usual sharp fluctuations. Sales of listed stocks 224,000 shares, Closed quiet; sales 7,900 bales. Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, August 11—[Special.] — Spinners were not free buyers in Liverpool today, their purchases only reaching 5,000 bales, but the disappointing character of the bureau report on Saturday caused a demand for the winter deliveries. Our cable advices state large purchases were made during the last three days of August and Septemduring the last three days of August and Septem-ber deliveries in Liverpool by the prominent oper-ator who covered that position last year. Locally the market improved steadily in the face of a tight and and unsettled feeling in financial circles. This advance is ascribed to the absence of sellers and the belief that operations in Liverpool will draw the early receipts to that market instead of

New York. Silver advanced to 513/4d today in an ticipation of the treasury buying on Wednesday.
Receipts of new cotton today at all ports 104 bales.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, August 11—Wheat—Trading was very active, and orders were received from all sources, both to buy and sell. It was the largest day's trading for some time, and the feeling developed was greatly unsettled and excited. The bull fever was on, and all the selling was sufficient only to cause occasional reactions. The market recovered from the various breaks and ruled strong most of the session. Shorts covered and longs sold freely, so that after the opening the market was held within a moderate range. The opening was 21/2@ 3c higher, held steady for a while and then eased of Sc. advanced Sc. declined 3/2/sc, advanced sc and closed 3c higher for September and 25/sc nigher for December. The advance and buovarter of the market was attributed to the government report, which, although not making as bad a show-ing for spring wheat as expected, the reduction since the July report was estimated at 21 million bushels, and the crop of winter and spring com-bined was estimated, on government per cents, at 76 million bushels short of last year, or a crop of 414 million bushels.

Corn-There was a good trade, the market ruling active and unsettled a greater part of the session.

The firm opening was due largely to the strength in wheat and the government crop report, which indicates a shortage of about $25 million bushels. The opening was $4c better than Saturday's closing figures, afterwards advancing $4c and sold off $61\$c, became steadier and closed $360 to higher than Saturday.

than Saturday.

Oats—A decrease of over 11 points in the condition of the crop, as made by the government report, materially reduced the crop prospects, and the reduction from the yield of last year is now estimated at 181 million bushels. This made oper-ators decidedly bullish; and, as wheat and corn opened higher, oats sympathized, the first sales being at an advance of 1@11/4c. The appreciation, however, was not backed by sufficient buying orders to hold, and prices receded 1@1½c and closed easy at about inside figures, but ½@½c gain over the last sales on Saturday. Mess pork—Quite a good trade was reported in January and May. Prices advanced 30@35c, re-ceded 15@20c, but rallied again 5@10c and closed comparatively steady.

Lard-A fairly active trade was reported. Early sales were made at 5@7% advance, but later in the day prices declined again 2%@5c. Short ribs—Quite a good business was transacted. Early in the day prices advanced 10@121/ce
